

JUDGE CARPENTER'S TRIAL OPENS—The case of Civil Court Judge Robert Carpenter, charged with assault with intent to murder John Lockwood, went to trial yesterday in Fulton Superior Court. At the left, Judge Carpenter leans forward in his chair as his step-daughter, Barbara Carpenter, whispers a word of encouragement during a short recess in the trial. At the right, George Thomas, in light suit, attorney for Lockwood, confers with his client during the intermission. Judge ordered spectators to check in firearms.

Carpenter Said Unfaithful, Gambler by Lockwood at Opening of Shooting Trial

By CELESTINE SIBLEY

The story of alleged fast living and extra-marital loves of a Fulton County jurist, as related by the man he is accused of shooting, became the property of a standing-room-only crowd of avid spectators in Superior Court yesterday as Judge Robert Carpenter went to trial charged with assault with intent to murder.

John Lockwood, the judge's victim in a pre-dawn shooting on Peachtree Street, July 27, testified Judge Carpenter drank, gambled, announced he wanted to get rid of his wife so he could "have all the women he wanted" and was caught in a New York hotel with one woman who "didn't have on anything but a blanket."

Judge Carpenter's counsel retailed by asking penetrating questions about Lockwood's trip to Florida with Mrs. Carpenter, registry at tourist camps with her and a visit to her home in the early hours of the morning.

Judge Virlyn B. Moore, presiding at the trial, which opened shortly before noon yesterday, frequently had to rap for order and at one point he ordered the Sheriff to arrest immediately any spectators caught laughing.

That point came after a heated exchange between Defense Attorney Ellis Barrett and the witness Lockwood.

"Isn't it a fact that you have made life impossible for this child, Barbara?" demanded Barrett, pointing to Mrs. Carpenter's daughter, who sat beside her foster father, Judge Carpenter.

Sol. Gen. Paul Webb, who is conducting the prosecution assisted by Special Prosecutor Elbert Tuttle and Asst. Sol. Ogden Dore, objected to the question and Judge Moore sustained the objection.

"Well, I'll put it this way," said Barrett. "Isn't it true that you went out to Mrs. Carpenter's home at 1:30 a. m. and Mrs. Carpenter was drinking heavily and you all ran this child out of her mother's bedroom?"

"No," said Lockwood. "It's not true."

"Then what time did you go there?" demanded Barrett.

"Twelve-thirty," replied Lockwood. "Laughter swept the courtroom and Judge Moore warned spectators he would sentence them to 'sit in the detention cell awhile' if they were found guilty of contempt of court. Frequently during the progress of the trial the judge himself complained that attorneys were 'wandering far afield.'"

Currency Devaluation Is Urged for Europeans

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Top leaders of the World Bank and Monetary Fund joined yesterday in urging European countries to devalue their currencies as a means of hastening their economic comebacks.

This advice was given to nearly 350 foreign delegates, including a score of finance ministers, who gathered at a two-day meeting of the multi-billion-dollar international lending agency.

Eugene Black, American President of the 48-nation World Bank, bluntly told the session: "I do not underestimate either the complexities or the far-reaching consequences of such action, but I fail to see how it can be avoided."

Camille Gutt, the Belgian financier who heads the World Monetary Fund, said that present money

Black surprised delegates by strongly advocating changes in the American-sponsored Marshall Plan for European recovery with the aim of making dollar aid more effective.

Black, a former Vice President of the Chase National Bank in New York, recommended the American Government sell each Marshall Plan country immediately what its share of aid will be during the remainder of the program—until June 30, 1952.

The American Government should then, Black said, assure each Marshall Plan country that its share will not be reduced if it earns or saves more.

Steel Peace Hopes Soar As Both Sides Okay Talks

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Hopes for peace returned to the steel industry yesterday as both sides decided to work for a better pensions-same wages agreement that could become a guidepost in several pending labor disputes.

Four giants in the steel producing world—United States Steel, Republic of Cleveland, Inland and Jones and Laughlin—agreed to resume negotiations with the CIO United Steelworkers on the basis of recommendations by a presidential board.

In agreeing to resume negotiations, however, United States Steel declined to commit itself to the presidential board's formula for peace. Asked if Company agreement on the bargaining proposal meant acceptance of the board's recommendations, a spokesman said: "I wouldn't think so." The steelworkers previously had dropped their fight for a 12½ cents hourly fourth-round wage boost. They accepted the board's recommendation for a 10-cent hourly package covering company paid insurance and pensions.

Meanwhile, John L. Lewis virtually threatened to call a strike if Southern coal operators continue withholding payments from the United Mine Workers welfare fund. A number of Southern operators have followed the policy of "no contract—no welfare payments."

Lewis said a continuation of their "default" may cause "reactions deterrent to the constructive progress of the industry."

There was no report of progress in efforts to settle the four-day-old Missouri Pacific Railroad strike and peace talks in the Hawaiian dock strike still were bogged down.

Although technically the steel industry is operating under a 11-day strike truce agreement proposed by President Truman, the prospects appeared good that there will be no work stoppage.

A White House source said President Truman considers the preliminary agreement in the steel industry the forerunner of widespread settlements in other industries.

Maurice J. Tobin, Secretary of Labor, predicted the agreement will bring "national prosperity such as the country has rarely known."

'GA. LAW—STOP!' Train Aids In Arrest At Waycross

WAYCROSS—(P)—An Atlantic Coast Line locomotive assisted in catching some alleged fugitives here Monday afternoon when William Robert Willis, of Weaverville, N. C., who was being followed by a Georgia State Patrol car, tried to break away in downtown traffic and drove into a freight engine which was crossing the intersection near the Waycross Journal-Herald office.

The noise of the impact attracted several hundred people to the scene.

Willis, James K. Brock and Beatrice and Christine Rowland, sisters, were traveling south in the car when they were stopped at Crawley, for a routine check, the local office of the State Patrol revealed.

Officers became suspicious and started into town with them, with Brock in the patrol car and Willis at the wheel of the other vehicle.

They drove to Plant Avenue and at this juncture Willis started in the opposite direction from the patrol car. It was while driving down Plant Avenue at a high rate of speed that Willis ran into the locomotive.

The car Willis was driving was a stolen vehicle from Asheville, N. C., the Patrol reports. Willis is being held here for theft of the car and the other members of the party are being held for investigation.

Willis is also a bad check artist.

City-County Merger Wins Strong Support at Hearing

By ALBERT RILEY

Proposals for the consolidation of Atlanta and Fulton County governments gained strong support yesterday in the second day of public hearings before the Local Government Commission.

The one-government idea was endorsed by Harry Maugans, president of the Buckhead 50 Club; W. E. Harrington and Boyce Graham, who formed a One-Government League here in 1939; Mrs. Walter Paschall, president of the Atlanta League of Women Voters, and Lyle Chubb, expert on governmental affairs.

Representatives of the Sylvan Hills Civic Club and the Atlanta Urban League added their endorsement.

Maugans, who fought the annexation of Buckhead by the City of Atlanta two years ago, declared that there is almost unanimous opinion throughout the County that if the people could vote on the issue, consolidation of the two governments would be overwhelmingly approved.

Declaring that mere annexation of populous areas by Atlanta is not the answer to the city's problem and would not eliminate duplication of services, Maugans said: "We favor consolidation of the governments mainly because it is logical, simple and accomplishes what every citizen of the Atlanta area vitally wants."

It would give Atlanta unlimited opportunities to increase its population and give the metropolitan area a chance at decreased taxes rather than increased rates, he added.

Maugans proposed a City-County of Atlanta to be composed of three taxing districts. One would be

Senate Shelves Oleo Tax Bill

WASHINGTON—(P)—Senate Democratic leaders yesterday shelved until January the question of repealing oleomargarine taxes.

Sen. Lucas, Democrat, Illinois, announced after a Party Policy Committee meeting that there was unanimous agreement that the issue should not be brought up in the Senate until the next session of Congress.

The House has voted to repeal the taxes—10 cents a pound on colored oleomargarine and one-fourth cent a pound on uncolored.

Lucas said the oleomargarine repealer will be one of the first measures taken up in the January session.

Abortion Death Cause, Dr. Jones Tells Court

By BILL BORING

Dorothy Martin, 23-year-old telegraph operator, died of shock that resulted during an attempt to abort her baby, Dr. Herman Jones, Fulton County criminal pathologist, testified in Fulton Superior Court yesterday.

Dr. Jones testified for the State in the trial of P. D. Beigun, a Hapeville contractor charged with murder in connection with the alleged attempt to illegally deliver the young woman's child.

Beigun's name has been linked to an alleged abortion business operating extensively in the Atlanta area.

Dr. Jones was the chief witness at the trial yesterday, which was recessed until 9:30 a. m. today. He stated that he and an Atlanta physician had performed an autopsy on Miss Martin and found that she was pregnant and had suffered a vaginal injury.

He told the jury that in his opinion this injury was associated with the nervous shock allegedly resulting in Miss Martin's death.

Dr. Jones testified that the unborn child was alive at the time of the operation, and that the victim was "normal in every way with the exception of pregnancy."

An Atlanta obstetrician was called to the witness chair by the State but was not given the opportunity of testifying. Attorneys for the defense and the State got into an argument over how a question which William Hall, State's attorney, had put to the doctor, and before it could be settled, Judge George P. Whitman recessed court because of the late hour.

Miss Martin was pronounced dead by Grady Hospital doctors who examined her at the Hapeville home of Beigun. During the opening day of the trial, Monday, Virgil Echols, 21, a witness testified that he took Miss Martin to the home of Beigun for an abortion, but that he was not responsible for the young woman's condition.

He said that 15 minutes after Beigun and the woman had closed themselves in a room, Beigun reappeared, frantically stating that the girl apparently was unconscious. The youth said that Beigun warned him to tell investigators that Miss Martin had fainted.

Tours Available to State Students Through Big Constitution Offer

By FRANK MAJORS

Unburden yourselves, Georgia school students. There's help at hand for financing those annual class jaunts.

Thanks to The Atlanta Constitution there will be $100,000 available to help finance those annual dreams of a super elegant class trip to Washington, New York, or places more appealing to the students.

The sponsorship of this gigantic Class Trip Campaign is being announced today by Major Clark Howell, President and Publisher of The Atlanta Constitution Publishing Company.

An outline of the campaign plans is being sent to principals of 700 high schools in Georgia towns where there is carrier delivery service of "The South's Standard Newspaper."

This doesn't limit it though to senior or just high school classes. Classes in elementary schools and which have projects they wish to carry out as a group can participate also.

It is not a contest. As a high-type business project it carries the endorsement of Dr. M. D. Collins, State Superintendent of Schools.

More than that, it is a generous paying plan whereby increasing amounts of cash—up to $2.75 a subscriber—are paid to classes in ratio to the amount of energy they devote to its success.

The idea is simple. Beginning Sept. 15, students need only to obtain signatures of their parents, friends or hometown neighbors as new subscribers to The Atlanta Constitution for one year.

What could be easier. There's no money for the students to collect, nor any papers for them to deliver. They just send the signed order to The Atlanta Constitution.

Classes will be delivered by carriers, and will be collected for at the rate of 40 cents per week.

Then when the campaign ends April 1, a check in full payment to cover the number of subscriptions sold by the students will be sent to the class treasury.

The amount of the check will be limited only by the efforts of the students themselves. Payment will be made on a sliding scale, based on the average number of orders secured per student in the class participating.

Every subscription earns a base amount of cash for the class, according to the date it is secured. Bonus payments are added according to the total number of subscriptions sold. The bonus is a reward for the extra attention the class devotes to this plan for raising class funds.

Students will like this kind of project. The product they sell is a welcome addition to any Georgia home. The Atlanta Constitution is edited to appeal to the taste of Georgians, and offers writing talents which no other newspaper can provide.

Students need only to consult with their school officials. Let them know your class as a whole wants to participate in this campaign. Literature will be sent to explain the plan in detail to students, parents, teachers and officers alike.

Remember, too, if the class has some other project which it wishes to undertake, the campaign is broad enough to cover any type endeavor under its provisions.

Tariff Days Over for America, Black Says

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR.
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

While the international financial conferees in Washington have been working around the fringes of the tariff issue, Eugene Black, President of the World Bank, has brought it boldly into the open.

The tri-power communique on results of the "dollar crisis" discussions restates as American policy the intention to revise tariffs to meet developing needs.

But Black, as I read his statement at the opening of the Bank and Monetary Fund meeting, says, the days of American tariffs are over. American policy, he says, is "basically inconsistent with its position as the great creditor nation of the world." He suggests a halt to the policy of encouraging the production of goods for the home market which could be more economically imported.

It's an idea which has been nibbling away at the minds of students of economics for years. The United States has gradually been doing something about it through the reciprocal trade treaties, and has been very insistent that Europeans do something about it to make the Marshall Plan fully effective.

There has always been an argument as to whether protection of an industry because it is located in the United States and employs Americans is truly economical, as compared with letting the people buy cheaper from abroad where that is possible, thus sending dollars to create markets for other products in which America excels.

In the early postwar years there was a developing school of thought that the ultimate solution would lie in free competition, with each area or national unit producing what it produces best with less emphasis on self-sufficiency.

Against this is always to be balanced, of course, the fact that war has not been abolished, and that a nation must keep its mind on its supplies of vital materials.
That is why the United States has insisted on keeping its synthetic rubber plants going in peacetime, to the impoverishment of East Asia gum producers.

Americans pay far more than would be the case without tariffs for sugar, matches and the whole list of protected goods. But where would they be in the case of war and ship shortages? Industries allowed to die for the sake of lower peacetime prices and improved world trade would have to be re-established under trying emergency conditions.

And this is over and above the immediate problem of unemployment and financial disruption involved in the death or serious curtailment of an industry.

This question is going to be a serious one in the effort to implement the American idea of aiding undeveloped areas. Somebody will have to buy this new production.

There are a hundred and one pros and cons. It used to be a prime partisan political question, and promises to be again.

Even a sweeping policy change could only be implemented by very gradual stages. Regardless of conflicts with true economics, protection of a nation's production of vital materials, at least will be essential until there is a sure-fire arrangement against war.

15 Priests Arrested In Prague

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia—(AP). Roman Catholics have organized an underground communications network and the Communist government has arrested 15 priests in an effort to smash it, church and diplomatic officials said last night.

The informants said the church had been compelled to set up some kind of system to keep contact between priests and their bishops. They said the network was not for political purposes.

The government has banned circulation of pastoral letters, closed down the church press, confiscated printing equipment and made Archbishop Josef Beran a virtual prisoner in his Prague palace, depriving Catholic administrators of normal means of communicating with the priests.

"There's no doubt about it," said one informant, that the arrests of 15 priests in the last two weeks were for the purpose of smashing the secret network.

As proof that the system is still working, however, it was pointed out that parish priests still are sending in declarations to the government that they would rather go to jail than obey a new church control bill which the Communists propose to enact.

Church sources say more than 70 percent of the priests—or about 4,900—have already notified the government of their concerted stand.

The memorandum added to the impression that the Church-State clash is building up to a climax when the government starts to push its church control bill through Parliament next month. The bill gives the government complete control over church finances, appointments, education and administration. It provides fines or jail sentences for even small violations of the regulations.

The church leaders are going ahead with plans for the consecration of Msgr. Gaetano Matoušek as auxiliary to Archbishop Beran and titular Bishop of Serigana.

The date of the proposed consecration has not been disclosed, but it is believed it will take place next Sunday.

The church similarly defied the government when it consecrated two titular bishops Aug. 14 at Trnava, Slovakia.

Offers Self For Cancer Research

A former Georgia schoolteacher is offering herself as an experimental patient to aid in cancer research.

Dr. Willie Melmoth Bomar, of Glenwood, said her cancer "appears to be quite out of control now."

Dr. Bomar last June staged a sit-down strike to collect funds she had paid to the State teacher retirement system because she needed them "for cancer treatment."

After demanding and obtaining return of her contributions to the retirement fund, she went to the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., where she has been under treatment for the past four months.

Dr. Bomar wrote Dr. R. A. Harvey, of the University of Illinois College of Medicine, offering herself for experiments with the betatron—a device for accelerating electrons to a state of high energy. Scientists say the machine is capable of penetrating and damaging tissue, and they hope cancer tissue may be selectively damaged.

The ex-school teacher, who was scheduled to leave Rochester late yesterday for her home in Glenwood, said she had not had time to get a reply from Dr. Harvey. She added she had asked Dr. Harvey to notify her at her Georgia home "if he can use me."

politan district, extending all over the county, exclusive of incorporated towns, wherever citizens are receiving all metropolitan services. There appeared to be unanimous opinion at the second day's hearing that some sort of equitable merger or consolidation of governments and elimination of duplicating services and costs should be achieved. The only differences were about the method, and even those differences appeared to be diminishing.

Even R. E. (Red) Dorrough, unofficial "mayor" of Buckhead, discussed "total consolidation," intelligent annexation, "the Carter Plan" and the "borough plan," and said "I hope that before I die I can see Decatur, north of Brookhaven and all of us under one government, and I believe Atlanta will go forward."

Carlos Hopkins, president of the Sylvan Hills Civic Club, said the residents of that area want the benefit of Atlanta schools, facilities of which they are now denied.

Earlier in the day, Fred B. Moore, President, and Clark McDonald, Executive Vice President of the Central Atlanta Improvement Association, proponents of annexation, boomed the "Frank Carter Plan" to get the populous areas of Fulton County into one municipal governmental unit and help eliminate duplication of services.

The plan would divide the City in Fulton County into four wards with two councilmen-commissioners each. The section of Atlanta in DeKalb County would have two councilmen. The 10 would function with a mayor as administrative head.

As it affects Fulton County at large, the DeKalb representation would drop out and the "tri-cities" of Hapeville, College Park and East Point would be represented by two commissioners under the Carter plan which envisions immediate annexation of all the congested areas of Fulton County. The northern and rural areas of Fulton County would have one commissioner each.

City Councilman James E. Jackson recommended adoption of the Virginia Plan which, he said, calls for automatic annexation of populous areas adjoining cities when they attain a certain size. The City of Atlanta now is contributing 82 cents of Fulton County's tax dollar and helping support the County schools.

"One government is not the answer," Jackson argued. However, the one-government plan was strongly supported by W. E. Harrington, a former president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce.

Harrington declared that a survey by Dr. Thomas H. Reed in 1935 and every commission that has since studied the problem has come up with the one-government plan as "the ideal answer," and then come up with the finding that it would be impossible to achieve.

He deplored a defeatist attitude as he urged bold planning for one flexible government for the future of expanding Atlanta. Harrington and Boyce Graham declared that the people were overwhelmingly in favor of consolidation in 1939 when the war came on and a premature effort resulted in a commission report favoring annexation instead.

Rep. Luther Alverson declared the people are entitled to have a vote on the issue and declared his entire legislative proposals for one-government are designed to give them that vote.

Mrs. Walter Paschal said the League of Women Voters has made a long study of the problems and opposes the Virginia Plan as a "step backward." The "Federalism" of the borough plan such as is operated in New York would be cumbersome, she said, and "the solution, in our thinking, is one Government for Atlanta and Fulton County. Such a Government, she said should be administered by a small representative council, elected by the people, who would employ a city-county manager to serve at the council's pleasure.

The League's plan proposes a separate tax rate for each municipal service to be levied only on those areas receiving that service. Existing municipalities in the County could come into the unified government when they desire to do so.

Lyle Chubb, who worked with Dr. Reed in making his survey here, supported the League of Women Voters' contention that "one government is the answer for this community."

Chubb said that the urban-rural distinctions in Fulton County are now almost totally artificial. Like Harrington he urged the commission to base its concepts on a long-range picture, and predicted that within five years the present maps of urban and rural divisions would have to be withdrawn.

"One government is not the antithesis of annexation," he added. "In one sense it means the complete annexation of Fulton County with the exception of the existing municipalities."

Mrs. G. T. Hamilton, Executive director of the Atlanta Urban League appeared before the Commission to tell of the need for better housing for Negroes both within and without Atlanta's present limits, pointing to a Negro population increase here of from 129,543 in 1940 to 142,855 in 1947. She urged consideration for the Negro population in any consolidation and planning of consolidated areas, and expressed approval of the consolidation plan.

Bids Asked on $450,000 Milledgeville Dormitory

Welfare Director Alan Kemper yesterday called for bids Sept. 20 on a 1,000-bed new dormitory building at Milledgeville State Hospital. The Director said the new dormitory will replace a Negro building which has been called a "fire trap." The building will cost an estimated $450,000. It is the first of the new buildings.

AMERICAN AIRLINES and

Johnson 'Hands Off' Crommelin

WASHINGTON—(P)—Secretary of Defense Johnson yesterday adopted a hands-off policy on the question of possible punishment for Navy Capt. John G. Crommelin over his blast against the nation's top military planners.

Asked whether the defense chief planned to intercede in the case, an aide told newsmen:

"Mr. Johnson has not asked for a report. He takes the position that it is a Navy matter."

Earlier, Navy Undersecretary Dan A. Kimball said in a statement that "no action is contemplated as far as the Navy is concerned."

Kimball said Crommelin was speaking for himself "as he has every constitutional right to do" when the 46-year-old naval officer charged that U. S. naval power is being wrecked by Army and Air Force brass in the Pentagon.

"Capt. Crommelin has done nothing to violate existing statutes or regulations," Kimball said.

Crommelin himself, in issuing his explosive statement Saturday, had told newsmen: "I'm finished. This means my naval career."

AF, Army United Again In Mock War

NUERNBERG, Germany—(UP)—The American Army apologized yesterday to the Air Force.

The apology ended a brief dispute over Air Force victory claims during U. S. maneuvers in Eastern Germany.

High officers who Monday night were engaged in a quarrel, were smiling at each other again. All went back to the task of theoretically destroying a mythical "enemy" armored force that struck into U. S. occupied Germany from the East.

Yesterday 27 soldiers were injured, two of them seriously, when a truck overturned while infantrymen were pursuing the "enemy" armor. A radio jeep signalled a plane about the mishap, and it called in medical units.

The dispute between the two American branches arose when an Army officer, Brig. Gen. Philip E. Gallagher, challenged the Air Force's claim to have "wiped out" the U. S. constabulary which has been playing the part of the "enemy" in the make-believe warfare that started a week ago. The U. S. First Division is playing the part of a real American unit.

Opposition Seen To Extending Savannah Limits

SAVANNAH — (P) — Difference of opinion on two civic projects under consideration in Savannah, namely extension of the city limits and erection of a new union passenger station, was revealed at a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce.

Impending objection, described as "fighting opposition," to the proposed extension of the limits southward was stated by Virgil D. Johnson, store executive, who said he had been approached by a number of affected property owners to act as chairman of a group to voice their protests. Johnson's property in the general section is outside the area proposed to be taken into the City, he said.

The Directors favored construction of a new Union Station but it was revealed that the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad favored continuing the present station. The Seaboard Air Line, through officials, has endorsed the plan for a new station.

The Southern Railway also uses the station.

New Orleans Mayor Asks U. S. Probe of Costello

NEW ORLEANS—(UP)—Mayor DeLesseps S. Morrison asserted yesterday that Frank Costello seeks to become the political dictator as well as gambling overlord of leading American cities.

He urged "immediate and energetic action" by the Federal Government to investigate Costello's activities.

The Mayor said in a statement issued by his office that a syndicate allegedly directed by Costello from New York apparently staged the Mickey Cohen gang shooting in Los Angeles to embarrass Mayor Fletcher Bowron.

Los Angeles, Morrison said, apparently has been chosen by the syndicate as the springboard of its grab for municipal power. "They are now trying to capitalize on this situation to the detriment of the people of that city," he said.

"Recently, Costello was quoted locally as saying he would put up half the funds to defeat our administration in New Orleans if the Long-old regulars would raise the other half," Morrison added. He referred to the "old regulars" political organization which the late Huey P. Long controlled here and which is now allied with Long's brother, Gov. Earl Long. The syndicate's operations are "national and international in scope," Morrison said. "It is a matter of record that operations of the syndicate include gambling houses, slot machines and allied activities in six or eight States from coast to coast, and from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico."

"In addition to illegal activities, the syndicate also is engaged in legitimate business activities such as night clubs, labor unions, real estate and the liquor business."

Morrison mentioned only New Orleans and Los Angeles by name in connection with the syndicate's alleged political drive. But he said "a few years ago, they occurred behind the scenes positions in Chicago, Los Angeles, New Orleans, Miami and other cities."

MRS. JANIE STEVENSON
100 years old

Mrs. Stevenson, 100, Feled At Huge Athens Party

ATHENS—Mrs. Janie Stevenson, one of Athens' oldest citizens, celebrated her hundredth birthday here yesterday with a birthday party attended by 300 people.

The party was given by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Luther Miller, Sr. and Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Lafayette Keener. Mrs. Miller is Mrs. Stevenson's daughter and Mrs. Keener is Mrs. Stevenson's granddaughter. They all live in Athens at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Keener.

For a number of years Mrs. Stevenson spent her winters in Miami, Fla. and her summers in Athens. She made the trip alone, and at the age of 96 flew to Miami. At that time she was the oldest passenger of the airline, and she has flown a number of times since. Mrs. Stevenson plans a flying trip to Miami this Christmas.

Mrs. Stevenson, who was born in Forsyth County on Sept. 13, 1849, contributes her longevity to being temperate in all things. She says everyone should have something in which they are vitally interested. Also, she believes that work will not hurt you, but worry will kill you.

She has memories of the War Between the States. She remembers the Battle of Atlanta and times when soldiers came to her house. Mrs. Stevenson believes in being a good citizen and still casts her vote regularly at the polls. She has been a member of the Methodist church since she was 13, and still attends many services.

Besides taking pride in her personal appearance as far as dressing goes, she regularly makes trips to the beauty parlor. Mrs. Stevenson eats almost everything she desires and sleeps the entire night.

TWO KILLED IN ILLINOIS STILL BLAST

PEORIA, Ill.—(AP)—Two men were killed yesterday in an explosion that rocked adjoining buildings and caused damage estimated at $500,000.

The dead were Louis Schrader, 33, of Peoria, and Oliver Thomas, 32, of Washington, Ill., workmen in the six-story still building of the Hiram Walker and Sons, Inc., distillery.

Both died several hours after the explosion.

With their clothing torn from their charred bodies, the two men staggered out of the still building into the arms of firemen. Their bodies were burned by steam.

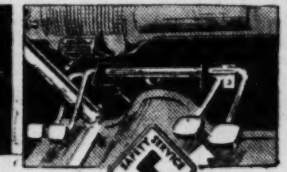

Nine other men—some at work on the top floor—reached safety.

Honorable Clark Howell

The Atlanta Constitution

Dear Mr. Howell:

Please allow me to express to you my appreciation for the fine business proposition which you are making to the Georgia public school children in the Constitution's $100,000 class trip campaign. I understand that this is not a secret but just a fine opportunity for students to be able to make money with which to make trips as a class to some point or points of interest. I think travel under proper supervision has unusually fine, interesting educational values.

With highest personal regards and best wishes,

Sincerely yours,

dollars than had been expected or increased if its dollar deficit grows larger; and that all Marshall Plan nations will be permitted to use their Marshall Plan dollars wherever they wish. This would eliminate present restrictions, imposed by Congress, which make it mandatory that certain American supplies such as wheat be bought in preference to foreign wheat.

Black asserted that if his proposed changes were put into effect "responsibility would be put squarely upon participating nations to take the measures necessary for their own recovery."

Black also called on the United States to make changes in certain policies which, he said, are "inconsistent with its position as a great creditor nation of the world. American tariff 'at certain crucial points' still remain a barrier to foreign exports to the U. S., he said, adding also:

The World Bank executive said "it does not make good sense" for example, for the United States to encourage production of goods for the domestic market which could be "bought more economically from foreign countries."

"And certainly all attempts to use the aid programs as a vehicle for dumping surplus goods abroad should be strongly resisted."

Snyder Voices Opposition To Hike in Gold Price

WASHINGTON—(P)—Secretary of the Treasury Snyder declared his opposition yesterday to any change in the dollar price of gold at this time.

Shortly after he stated his stand the International Monetary Fund referred to its gold committee a South African proposal for a price rise for the metal.

The committee will present its findings to the Fund's 47-nation board of governors on Friday, closing day of the monetary conference.

Wallace Denied 2d Court Plea

John Wallace, wealthy Meriwether County dairyman, lost a second plea before the Georgia Supreme Court yesterday to knock out his death sentence.

Wallace was convicted last year of the bludgeoning slaying of Tenant Farmer Williams, alias Wilson Turner, in Coweta County.

The State charged that Wallace and three other men pursued Turner shortly after his release from jail, killed him, and then burned and hid his body.

The case was described by Tuskegee Institute as the lynching of a white man by white men.

Wallace received a death sentence in Coweta Superior Court while the other three men were meted life terms—Herring Sivell, Henry Mobley and Tom Strickland.

After losing one appeal to the Supreme Court for a new trial, Wallace made a second plea charging that one of his jurors said before the trial that Wallace should go to the electric chair.

Wallace also asked for a new trial on grounds that new evidence by his alleged accomplices would show the crime was committed in Meriwether County instead of Coweta as charged by the State.

In a unanimous decision written by Justice J. H. Hawkins, the Supreme Court upheld lower court decisions denying a new trial.

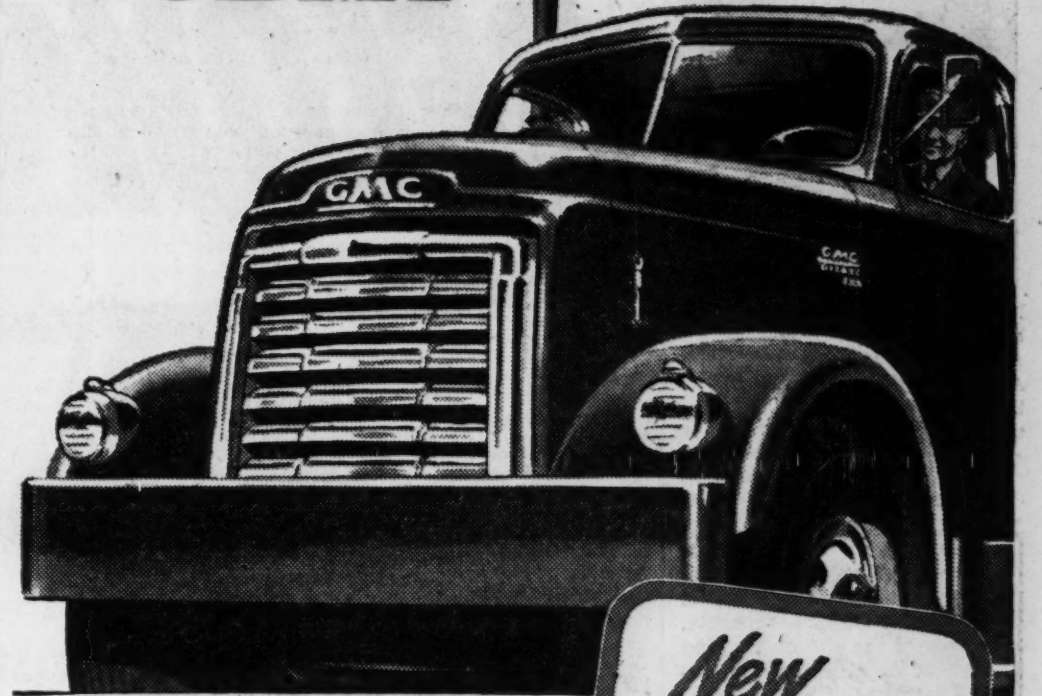

The juror named as prejudiced by Wallace denied any of the statements attributed to him. Justice Hawkins held that a new trial was not justified on the basis of such a contradictory question.

Hawkins said the alleged new evidence that the brutal murder took place in Meriwether County did not warrant a new trial because apparently it was available and should have been presented at the original trial.

Mills District To Memorialize Its War Heroes

A plaque honoring the seven men from the Mills Militia District in Dekalb County who died in service during the war will be dedicated in a service beginning at 8 p. m. Friday at Bouldercrest School, B. M. Gresham, Chairman of the Program Committee, said last night.

The seven names on the plaque are: John Marion Robertson, Hoyt Clifford Voyles, his brother Hollice Lloyd Voyles, George Edward Hewitt, Emmett Theron Parks, Howard Nathaniel Hightower and John Edward Carlisle.
Rep. James C. Davis, Congressman from the Fifth District, will be the principal speaker.

the City of Birmingham's population will jump 10,000 and that it will take in an unincorporated area of 13.6 square miles. This boosts Birmingham's population to an estimated 325,000 and its area to 67 square miles.
The referendum put Birmingham's population within 34,000 of Atlanta's estimated 359,000.
Atlanta's attempt to annex Buckhead and other areas in a similar referendum more than a year ago failed.
Five incorporated towns near Birmingham voted heavily against annexation in yesterday's election. Proponents of annexation said Birmingham needs more space and that more efficient government would result. Opponents said annexation means higher taxes and loss of local autonomy.

Give-Away Ban Blocked by Federal Injunction

CHICAGO—(P)—A federal judge yesterday blocked temporarily an FCC order banning radio giveaway programs and the networks said they would continue them full blast until the courts finally settle the issue.
The Federal Communications Commission had ordered its ban effective Oct. 1. It held such programs are illegal lotteries. Stations carrying them faced possible loss of their licenses.
Judge Michael L. Igoe granted a temporary injunction against the FCC on the plea of Radio Features Inc., a Chicago firm that produces syndicated radio programs. His restraining order will remain in effect until a three-judge Federal court convenes here Oct. 7. The three judge court will decide then whether to extend the injunction pending its hearing on the Chicago firm's contention that FCC lacks authority to issue such an order.

The injunction, however, exempts television programs. A section of the order including television was deleted when it was shown that Radio Features has no such contracts. Thus the Oct. 1 ban on televising jackpot programs still stands.

HAROLD, JR., DEBUTS

Wearing a pair of horn-rimmed specs which his father, Harold Lloyd, wore nearly 30 years ago, Harold, Jr., made his start as a movie actor. Harold is 18. Phyllis Kirk is at left; Joan Evans at right. Young Lloyd has a part in the film "With All My Love."

Benefits or Not

The Army's going to try for desertion Anthony V. Martino, "dead" private who turned up living—with a blonde. Martino, whose wife and two children lived in Waterbury, Conn., was listed dead or missing in France five years ago. He walked into a New York recruiting station last May and asked about veterans' benefits. A General Court-Martial will decide about them next week. Mrs. Thelma Darlene Davis is being held by Hollywood, Fla., police after her husband was shot trying to crawl through her bedroom transom. The Chief said the couple had quarreled. Sam Katz, of Detroit, made up his mind yesterday. In the past 31 years Katz has been at police headquarters 16 times—mostly on bad check charges. Yesterday he was back again. Suddenly he ran to a window, plunged out—four floors to his death.

She Had A Shimmy

Gilda Gray has asked a Denver court to do something about her "shimmy", shoulder-vibrating dance she made famous. The former Follies star, now 48, has a million-dollar damage suit against Columbia Pictures. She says the picture "Gilda" was based on her life and experiences without her permission and claimed she first "shimmied" when she was only 14 in a Milwaukee nightclub. Some people aren't easily excited. Louis de Large, for instance. In Patterson, N. J., an Erie Railroad train screeched to a stop when a horrified trainman discovered an automobile had been hit at a crossing. Looking for victims, he found an auto bumper and license plate. They finally found de Large at his home. He said, yes, he knew about the accident. The train had dragged his auto, wife and two friends 25 feet but nobody was hurt, so he drove home. There's going to be less confusion from now on over the Fantaro name. Five Fantaro sons and two daughters discovered their dad spelled differently each time the last name in registering their births. They agreed on one and the judge okayed it.

Caught for Good

Keljiro Otani, wartime chief of the Jap Secret Military Police, has been sentenced to 10 years in prison for treatment of U. S. prisoners. He eluded authorities for five years. Shirley May France says she will try again next Summer to swim the English Channel. Gen Dwight D. Eisenhower brushed aside politics again yesterday. Questioners got curious in Denver. Sen Tydings, Democrat of Maryland, has brought up the name of Carl A. Hugenfritz, industrialist, to head the Munitions Board. The WAC was stranded 47 days in a New Guinea jungle during the war has found the right man, she says. Margaret Hastings said she was married in June to Robert C. Atkinson, divorced insurance salesman.

College President

Dr. D. E. Walker, of Butler University, Indianapolis, has been named President of Milligan College in Johnson City, Tenn. Mrs. Mary Ellen Burden, daughter of Composer and Mrs. Irving Berlin, divorced Dennis Burden, of New York yesterday. A crusading grandmother, who takes time out once a week to bake a batch of bread, is the ne wmayor of Yankers, N. Y. She is Mrs. Edith P. Welty. Ben Rothbard, who was buried under three feet of San Francisco dirt, directed digging in an eight-foot sewer dinning in an eight-foot sewer hole when the cave-in occurred. Firemen arrived and his muffled voice directed their shovels toward his buried face.

DOBBIN LOSES TO FENDER DENTS

SPARKS, Nev. — (AP) — The Sparks City Council has agreed that the horseless carriage is here to stay.

The Councilmen ordered removal of hitchhiking posts from downtown curbs. Motorists are complaining that they put dents in the fenders of new cars when they park near the posts.

Jury Dooms S. C. Attacker

GREENWOOD, S. C.—(AP)—An all-white jury last night convicted Willie Tolbert of raping a young Greenwood white girl. The Negro defendant, 24, was sentenced to die in the State's electric chair Oct. 28.

MISS AMERICA ADVISES GIRLS:

Abjure False Front, But Not 'Falsies'

Special to The Constitution
NEW YORK—Eighteen-year-old Jacquie Mercer, the newly crowned Miss America of 1949, met the press here for the first time yesterday and gave out with a word of advice for American girls. About falsies, she said: "I don't wear them myself, but it's perfectly all right for those girls who need them." She also said that if plunging necklines were favorable to a girl she should wear them. Miss Mercer came here from Atlantic City to select an automobile, one item in a long list of prizes that go with the beauty crown, to make personal appearances and to appear on a radio program.

"I don't consider myself the prettiest girl in America, nor the most intelligent, and I haven't got the best shape," she said. "I think I am the typical, average, wholesome American girl. I think I won because I didn't try to acquire a false Hollywood glamor."

Florida Downs Sales Tax

TALLAHASSEE, Fla.—(P)—The Florida Senate yesterday defeated a limited three percent sales tax bill by a vote of 21-16.

The defeat came after Sen. Mathews, of Jacksonville, leading Administration spokesman in the Senate, said he had heard rumors this strategy was to pass a "straight across the board" sales tax with few exemptions.

He insisted, however, that Gov. Warren would carry out his pledge to veto a bill taxing the "necessities of life."

Passage of a general sales tax would mean "a chaotic condition," he declared, because it would be impossible to get the two-thirds vote necessary to override a Governor's veto.

A general sales tax bill, with virtually no exemptions, has been introduced and now is in the hands of the Finance Committee.

The committee deferred action on the Shivers Bill at his request Monday and sent the limited sales tax bill to the calendar for consideration.

Opponents of the limited measure offered little debate. Only Sen. Shivers spoke against it.

Year-Round Pastures Still Doubted by Some

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 14, 1949

Suggestion of the day: A good way to observe Conservation Week is by doing some kind of conservation work. Build a terrace, mulch a road bank, plant some winter grass. The job doesn't get done except by actual effort.

Well, I was amazed to learn that there is no such thing as year-round pastures. I had thought this was a matter of record by now and that any farmer or professional agriculturist had only to look around in his own county to satisfy himself on this point. But I find a campaign going on among people who ought to know better that we have "more or less" year-round pastures.

I don't have the list of all of the farmers in Georgia who now have year-round pastures but I can recall from memory a few of them and if a few farmers can have year-round pastures it is certain that others can do the same.

Lawson Patten, of Lakeland, former President of the Georgia Crop Improvement Association, is getting year-round grazing from Coastal bermuda and Kentucky 31 fescue grasses, plus certain legumes.

Fred B. Wilson, Route 2, Duluth, is getting year-round grazing from Kentucky 31 fescue, ladino clover, bangsese clover, and sericea lespedeza.

Harrison Summerour, of Gwinnett County, is getting year-round grazing on fescue and other crops. D. E. Nalley, of Forsyth County, is doing the same.

Dave Wainer, of Valdosta, is doing the same.

L. J. Moore, of Covington, is doing the same.

At Yellow River we are getting year-round grazing on fescue, ladino, sericea and kudzu.

Certain experiment stations are getting year-round grazing, but I will not bring them into this discussion.

The question reduces itself to this: Do we have a crop or combination of crops that will provide grazing from January through March? If so, we have year-round grazing, for the other months offer no real problem so far as grazing crops are concerned.

And if anyone doubts that fescue grass will provide winter grazing (and there are other winter-hardy plants), let him visit any of the farmers whose names are mentioned above.

Join us at 6 a. m. over WCOP. Then WMAZ, Macon, and WGGT, Gainesville, join us at 6:15 a. m. At 12:45 p. m. we are back over WCOP and WFOM, Marietta.

Cordially,

Channing Cope

Need of $5,000,000 for Missile Base Off Florida East Coast Told Senate

WASHINGTON—(P)—The military needs $5,000,000 to get started on an experimental guided missile base in Florida, Sen. Pepper, Democrat, Florida, told a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee yesterday.

The money would be used to construct a launching area at the Banana River Naval Air Station on the east coast of Florida.

Guided missiles soaring into the South Atlantic would be checked for performance from the Bahamas, Pepper said.

Committee members expressed concern over danger to vessels in the South Atlantic shipping lanes.

"The chances would seem very slight that any ship would be hit," Pepper said. "I presume the authorities would have adequate warnings out."

Youths Rob Indiana Bank Of $3,000

NEW CASTLE, Ind.—(P)—Two youths armed with a German Luger pistol and a knife locked Manager Harry Shively in the vault of the Mt. Summit Bank yesterday and fled with about $3,000.

A customer heard Shively pounding on the vault door. It took an hour to release him as the robbers had pounded the door's combination lock.

The youths were well dressed. It was not known how they escaped.

The Ohio State Patrol and FBI agents joined in the search.

The bank is a branch of the Citizens State Bank, of New Castle.

The action would absolve 16 women and five men accused of witchcraft in Salem in 1692. They were hanged between June and September of that year.

Rep. Daniel Rudsten, Democrat, Boston, filed the resolve Monday. He was not available for comment.

Winners Congratulated

The Atlanta Board of Education yesterday:

1. Congratulated D. M. Therrell, of the Fourth Ward, and J. Austin Dilbeck, of the Sixth, on winning new four-year nominations as members of the Board of Education. Both thanked those who worked for them and promised an even better administration in the future.

2. Transferred $10,000 for the purchase of equipment for expansions made in the schools in recent months.

3. Received a lithograph print of a painting "Old Homestead" by R. Crawford Livingston presented by The Constitution. The prints have been presented at schools throughout the State by The Constitution and Foote & Davies, Inc. It was a featured exhibit in The Constitution's art exhibit several months ago. The exhibit was staged to stimulate interest in art. A similar print was presented to Mrs. Ruth Sistrunk, physical director in the Atlanta School system.

4. Reviewed the new booklet, "Listen to Your Grand Jury," prepared by the Fulton County Grand Jurors' Association. It will be used in high school government classes. Eugene Young is author. It was printed by the Atlanta school system.

5. Heard a report that Cupid and Summer romances have had a successful Summer. Miss Ira Jarrell, School Superintendent, reported that 18 teachers, 12 white and six Negroes, since schools closed last Summer.

6. Ruled that all athletic events at Atlanta High Schools will be sponsored solely by the Atlanta Board of Education and voted to reinstitute the savings bank system in high schools. The banks were suspended during the war and students were urged to buy war bonds as an inducement to thrift.

The 'Walking Man'

The Atlanta City Council next year will boast its own "walking man." Jimmy Vickers, who defeated Dr. O. B. Cawthon for a four-year term as Councilman from the Fifth Ward, told audiences "the other candidates are running, but I am walking." He said he had walked hundreds of miles giving out 50,000 cards, enough matches to start a world conflagration, and shaken more hands than anybody in the same length of time. His colleagues have dubbed him "the walking man."

Marler's Friends Rally

Friends of Fifth Ward Councilman John T. Marler are determined that he will be in there pitching when Sept. 21 runoff votes are counted. They have formed a "Marler for Council Club" composed of representatives from all six of Atlanta's wards. Frank Miller is President of the organization, and Morris M. Hirschberg Secretary.

Blanchard Thanks Friends

T. Wayne Blanchard, who defeated Sixth Ward Councilman Howard Haire for a four-year nomination, yesterday thanked "my friends and loyal supporters for their confidence." He said he is extremely grateful and humble for the victory and will devote his talents and energies to "make Atlanta a greater City."

Police Matters Slated

City Council's Police Committee tonight is slated to study an investigation of the records of the 906 taxi and car-for-hire drivers and probably will try Patricia E. A. Howell on charges of abusing a Negro prisoner and pointing his pistol at a brother officer. Lt. A. C. Bryant has conducted the probe of the records of drivers and is expected to have his report ready by tonight.

Enrollment Up 1,000

Atlanta's 1949 school enrollment tops the corresponding period last year by approximately 1,000. Miss Ira Jarrell, City School Superintendent, said yesterday. The total as of yesterday was 49,882 and Miss Jarrell predicted it would top 52,000 before the end of next week. There are now 30,834 white and 18,948 Negro students enrolled thus far. The Negro enrollment is about 500 less than last year.

To Support Comrades

Some members of City Council, who won nominations for new four-year terms in the first City primary believe the time has come to rush to the aid of their besieged colleagues in the Sept. 21 runoff. It appeared yesterday. Although no official announcements were forthcoming, it was reported that generally the "ins" will support Roscoe Ailor, First Ward Alderman; Joe Allen, Second Ward Councilman, and John T. Marler, and Roy Bell, of the Fourth Ward. The incumbents are opposed by Police Chief Jenkins is attending the annual convention of the International Association of Police Chiefs in Houston. He is expected back in Atlanta next Monday.

Cook Led in Primary

Veteran Board of Education votes in his uncontested race for Pres. Ed S. Posts with 21,273 votes to 9,111 for his opponent, Robert Whitsett. They all issued statements thanking their friends and supporters.

Pruning School Costs

Architects and school administration officials are sharpening their pencils to prune costs of two Hartsfield in the Sept. 7 City Primary school projects within allocations. Low bids for a new gymnasium at Mayor, yesterday denied knowledge of a petition urging a recheck nothing of such a petition. Several of the 210 voting machines used in persons said they had seen them the Primary. Brown was out of circulating in the downtown area the City, and Wellborn Ellis, re-yesterday. Two Georgians Elected To Theater Owners' Group

Two Georgia theater men yesterday were elected to the Executive Committee of the Theater Owners' Association of America at the Association's annual convention in Los Angeles, Cal.

Named to the committee were Robert Wilby, of Atlanta, and Nat Williams, of Thomasville.

The more than 1,000 theater owners attending the convention this week heard Ted R. Gamble, of Portland, Ore., Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Association, report that television has not hurt movie attendance. In fact, Gamble said, boxoffice receipts are up 10 percent over 1948.

The theatermen also heard S. C. of Commerce Charles Sawyer state that "there is a general agreement that wartime excise taxes should be repealed as soon as possible." Sawyer said: "I am greatly impressed by the argument that taxes which were imposed originally to prevent people from spending their money for so-called luxuries should no longer be effective when the object is now to encourage people to spend their money for whatever they need or want."

PSC Delays Bus Ruling

The Public Service Commission postponed action yesterday on a fight for Atlanta's suburban transit business as it took under advisement railroad appeals to cut out three rural freight agencies.

The Commission postponed a hearing on petitions filed by the Georgia Power Company and the DeKalb Suburban Lines, Inc., until 9:30 a. m. today.

The DeKalb Company seeks permission to transport passengers between Stone Mountain and Atlanta. The Power Company countered with a petition asking withdrawal of its Decatur-Avoncote feeder bus service.

The three communities threatened with a loss of freight agencies are Hiram, Towns, and Sugar Valley. All three petitions were filed by the Southern Railway.

Reds Free U. S. Pair After 72 Hours

BERLIN—(P)—Maj. Victor Milner, Jr., 30, and his father, 56, were released by the Russians last night after more than 72 hours in captivity, U. S. authorities announced.

The news was disclosed after unconfirmed reports had said two Americans on their way to receive the pair also had been seized by the Russians. This report originated with German border police and U. S. authorities said they had no knowledge of it.

Milner and his father, both of Hollywood, had left Frankfurt Saturday on an automobile trip to Berlin and disappeared. Last night

Atlanta Pair Held as Purse Stumps Cupid

A young Atlanta couple who said they ran away to get married were under arrest in New Orleans last night charged with having no visible means of support.

The two, Robert E. Wood, 20, and Janie O'Hearn, 17, were taken into custody as they slept in the New Orleans bus station.

Mrs. W. L. Wood, of 882 Brookline St., S. W., said her son had been missing since Saturday a week ago and that she had not heard from him. She said she was opposed to his marriage to Miss O'Hearn, who lives on Oak Street.

"I'm going to try to reach him by telephone tonight," she added. She said he had never been in any trouble.

Georgia Tech came out of the dark last night.

County Commission Chairman R. L. Doyal and Mayor Hartsfield closed switches that threw the spotlight on a nearly new Georgia Tech. The "spotlights" were units of a new street lighting system at the flats, part of a $50,000 a year City-County program to beautify the Atlanta Institution.

"Five years ago," said Tech Pres. Blake R. Van Leer, "Georgia Tech was virtually hemmed in on three sides by what could be classed as slums. The institution had a good reputation on the football field and it had produced some fine engineers, but it had no campus in a strict sense. Its buildings and grounds were run down and it was about as dark and dirty as a respectable institution could be."

As the post-war expansion plan went into effect, and the Georgia School of Technology became the Georgia Institute of Technology with several schools in it, buildings sprang up and alterations were made.

At that time, Van Leer said, the City Council and the Fulton County Commissioners agreed to each give Tech $25,000 to build a more beautiful campus.

Since then, the President revealed, landscaping plans have been drawn for the new Tech and much landscaping has been done.

$5,000 BONDS SET

2 Held for Grand Jury In Safe Robbery Attempt

Two Negro-men yesterday were bound over to the Fulton County Grand Jury under $5,000 bonds each for attempting to haul away a safe containing $1,627 from the Birdseye Flour Mill office at 277 Peters St., S. W.

One of the men, Sam Banks, 28, of a Fair Street, S. W., address, already was under bond for one count of burglary, one attempted burglary and carrying concealed weapons, Dets. M. V. Moss and I. M. Helton said. They added he was arrested last week inside a laundry on Walker Street.

The other, Raymond Russell, 29, also of Fair Street, was serving a 10-year probationary term for robbery, detectives related. They said both Banks and Russell have extensive police records.

Investigation of the Peters Street burglary began the morning of Sept. 4, when the safe fell from an automobile as it sideswiped another machine in front of 1017 Fair St., S. W. Detectives said a rear door was ripped from Banks' car and that paint found inside the auto matched that of the safe.

A Touch of the Old West, No Less!

While we deplore the sordid atmosphere of the Carpenter trial, there was one bit of news which intrigued us.

All guests were asked to check their guns at the door and even the officers were ordered to remove their weapons. It was a touch of the old West, in a sense. Yet, withal, a proper one. State courts would, we believe, benefit mightily if all were run on a basis of dignity and severity of rules such as prevail in Federal courts.

Feminine Hat in Ring?

Georgia may have a woman candidate for Governor.

According to the Griffin Daily News, friends of Mrs. Pat Hungerford, of Gray, in Jones County, are urging her to enter the race.

Mrs. Hungerford is no stranger to politics. A few years ago she ran for Commissioner of her county and was elected.

Searching the spectators added thrills for the curious at the Carpenter trial. We suggest if the presiding judge will pardon us, that only those who may be seated be allowed in the courtroom and that he continue the fine start made and not allow the inevitable publicity to create a sensation-hunting crowd.

The case is an embarrassing one for the county and for the bar. We applaud the obvious determination of the presiding judge to keep it within proper limits.

As for Pat, she has neither confirmed nor denied the rumor that she has been urged to become a gubernatorial candidate.

Should she so decide, it should suit those who keep clamoring for new faces on the Georgia political scene.

A frilly feminine hat in the ring would really be a stand-out.

Preying on Old People

In some Southwest Georgia counties patent medicine peddlers are reported as pressurizing the aged to buy their product. These salesmen are said to be telling old-age pensioners that if they don't buy the "medicine" at $10 a bottle, they may be cut off the pension rolls.

Law enforcers are asked to be on the lookout for these predatory purveyors who would take advantage of old people.

When they are caught, perhaps the fit punishment would be to have them take some of their own medicine.

It's Time for Congress To Act

As result of the courage of a Navy captain who was willing to risk his career in order to speak out, Congress at last may be forced into establishing a national defense policy—a task it so far has avoided like a plague.

Fleet Adm. William F. Halsey's support of the charges by Capt. John G. Crommelin that top defense officials are trying to wreck the Navy lifts the dispute above the intra-service level onto a national plane. Adm. Halsey's combat record and his stature as a top battle strategist who had more to do with defeating the Japs than any other commander lends Capt. Crommelin's charges a gravity that cannot be overlooked.

We were hopeful, as were a great many others, that the House Armed Services Committee would take the B-36 inquiry to its logical conclusion and determine whether or not we are sacrificing a properly balanced military force by placing too much emphasis on a single service and, indeed, on a single weapon of a single service.

Failure of the investigators so far to go beyond the superficial aspects leaves dangling a promise by Rep. Vinson, of Georgia, Chairman of the Committee, that the investigation would be a thorough one. We hope that when the Committee is reconvened Mr. Vinson will see to it that this promise is fulfilled.

It is indisputable that some of Capt. Crommelin's charges are true. The Navy's supercarrier was abandoned, for instance, by a two-to-one vote of the Joint Chiefs of Staff after it had been authorized specifically by the Congress and the President. The point at issue is whether two services, in this case the Air Force and the Army, are to be allowed to dictate to a third service, the Navy, what weapons it may use. That concept is contrary to the Key West and Newport Agreements, which are supposed to be binding.

Sec. Johnson has left the Defense Department open to criticism by his policies of censorship. During the B-36 inquiry Air Force spokesmen insisted no fighter planes could overtake the B-36 because none could fly effectively at 40,000 feet. A few days ago a photograph of Washington and vicinity, taken from a Navy Banshee plane at 52,000 feet, mysteriously appeared in a Washington saloon. The Defense Department had refused to clear the picture for publication and the natural suspicion was that the refusal was based on favoritism for the Air Force. Not yet has there been any official comment on the picture. It is difficult to regard this and other blackouts of information as a healthy sign.

Capt. Crommelin has brought into the open, and in a manner that demands attention of Congress, a basic problem of National Defense.

We trust the House Armed Services Committee will seize the initiative and see that the proper action is taken.

1950 Races Moving Into Spotlight

Prospective races for the United States Senate and Governor, issues of school financing and tax revision facing the January General Assembly, noncompliance with the reorganization law, and the election of a State employee to head the Ku Klux Klan are items causing talk among the editors of Georgia.

As speculation persists that Gov. Talmadge may run for the Senate next year, the Albany Herald and Valdosta Times expressed hope that Sen. George would be returned to the Senate without opposition. The Times added that George could overwhelmingly defeat any opponent.

Former House Speaker Roy Harris, and not Gov. Talmadge, is suggested for the Senate by the Fitzgerald Leader, in the event George retires. The Leader declared Talmadge would have no chance at all against George, but that Talmadge would be hard to beat for the governorship.

Schools and taxes will make January's session of the Legislature the most important in history. In the opinion of the Columbus Ledger, "It says Georgia still has not adequately provided the modern educational facilities which the children of the State deserve. The showdown for equalizing our tax burden will be reached at the January session, the Ledger adds. The Fitzgerald Leader says a sales tax will be necessary to finance school improvements when the United States Supreme Court rules in favor of Negro contestants in the Irwin County school case.

Local governments are exerting more effort toward improving their own schools. Because of two bond issues, Carrollton has a school system it is proud of, reports the Carrollton Times-Free Press. The record enrollment caused no bulging at the seams in the enlarged physical plant this year—and this is quite a change from previous years. Calhoun County will vote on a $22,000 bond issue Oct. 12 to determine whether to enlarge and improve Edison High School.

Newspapers continue to denounce the Reregistration law, and report its failure. Less than 100 have reregistered in Habersham County, says the Tri-County Advertiser, which calls the law the "most useless piece of legislation ever passed." The Gilmer Times-Courier says it will cost each county an average of $4,000 to reregister—and Gilmer, like many other counties, is just marking time until the Supreme Court decides whether the law is constitutional.

Gov. Talmadge's friendship with the Klan is attacked by the Baxley News-Banner. Observing that Sam Roper, until recently a State employee, has been named head of the Klan to succeed the late Dr. Sam Green, a member of the Governor's staff, the News-Banner comments: "We cannot see much merit in the Governor not belonging to the Klan when key positions in the State administration are held by its membership, and by appointment to such positions and other actions he has repeatedly shown that he desires to keep the Klan very much alive."

Rep. Julian Bennett, of Barrow County, is feuding with his County Commissioners. The solon asked the Grand Jury to have an investigation made of the Commissioners, and he handed the jurors a lot of material. The Grand Jury said that it found "the county officials are performing their duties in an efficient manner and their books and records are neatly and correctly kept." So Bennett bought a full-page advertisement in the Windsor News to present his case to the people. He charged that the Commissioners created a $63,591 debt—a debt in the interest of the people, but a nefarious political plot for the self-aggrandizement of a few powerful individuals in this county." He was critical of the Grand Jury, too.

Sen. Frank Lunsford, of Leary, read the Georgia League of Women Voters' comments on tax revision, and made this comment: "The remedy to the tax situation is to place the power to tax—which is the power to destroy—in the hands of competent and adequate personnel under the merit system, not bound by political ties and not subject to removal at the end of each administration."

Uncle Sam's Big Setting of Eggs

Uncle Sam's taxpayers have bought and stored 173,365,822 dozen eggs—which is more than two billion of them. (You could set a lot of hens with that.) The cost is going to be around $70,000,000. It may go higher in 1950.

That's kept the price of eggs higher than they normally would be.

The potato story is an old one. Last year, in Maine, potato farmers averaged more than $7,000 each on potatoes which were abandoned. The Government gave away all people and institutions would have and sold many to Jehuhydrating and alcohol plants. The rest were destroyed. A potato doesn't keep well.

All that has our people properly excited.

Omelets Many newspaper editorialists, excited with a new discovery, are describing omelets a mile wide, and super-highways paved with mashed potatoes as they delve into the crop support prices.

It so happens that for at least 15 years we have been taking swings at that program with, we must in honesty say, little result. The Federal Government and its taxpayers have for years been subsidizing beet sugar growers in the West, thereby raising the price of sugar to every American housewife and family. The sugar could come in much cheaper from many other sources and there is no single good reason to keep sugar high for millions of Americans to help finance a few hundred beet sugar growers. There are other illustrations. This one will suffice, since it is one of the oldest.

Sectional War All of this is background to one of the greatest sectional battles since the War Between the States. It is a campaign which finds, for example, Senator Walter George, Georgia's conservative senior member of the Senate, standing shoulder to shoulder with President Harry S. Truman, a sight somewhat strange to Capitol eyes. He is fighting for a two-year continuation of the 15-year-old reciprocal trade agreements made by Cordell Hull, they bearing his name as the Hull Trade Acts.

Opposed to him is Republican Senator Eugene D. Milliken, of Colorado, who wants to bar these trade agreements and place restrictive tariffs in their path.

Reason Self, or sectional interest, as advanced by regional economics, is the reason for this sectional warfare. We are about to harvest an old-fashioned farm surplus. If it isn't sold abroad the Southern States will suffer. The political crops of wheat and cotton are high. But also in surplus are tobacco, peanuts, textiles and many other farm items.

Said Senator George: "A $13,000,000,000 (export) market for American farms and American factories at a time when surpluses are appearing in many areas of the economy is a matter of vital concern to everyone. In order to sell we must buy."

Said Senator Milliken: "To enact reciprocal acts which would allow imports of oil, copper, lead, zinc, furs, fisheries and watch parts would endanger the economy of the nation." (We are short in lead, copper and zinc.)

The Senator from Colorado also is interested in silver, it being one of the items which for generations has been subsidized by the American taxpayers, who have paid the wages of silver miners and kept the price high at the expense of millions of persons for the benefit of but a few.

Trade The point is that countries who want to buy cotton and tobacco, wheat and peanuts, cannot do so unless they sell some of their own goods.

There is no better illustration than the present British dollar crisis. If it fails, the overvalued farmers of the South will suffer if they grow peanuts, tobacco, cotton, or produce naval stores. States which produce oil don't want the acts extended. States which sell cotton do. And so it goes. Sen. Walter George was correct when he said, "If the British economy collapses, ours will follow within a few months."

Americans have been fantastically slow to realize that we can sell our surpluses only to those people who can buy them. They can buy only if they can sell some of their products.

Farmers will grow peanuts, cotton and tobacco in the South have always thought of the foreign market in terms of something which really wasn't important because when the market wasn't there the Government paid the bill.

Wheat farmers were in the same category. During the war farmers were asked to increase their feed and food crops. They did a magnificent job. There is no reason why they should now be penalized.

But the old days are gone.

Trade The world has got to turn more and more to free trade. We have got to emphasize those things at which we are best. This will mean letting certain manufactured items be hurt by competitive goods from others who can do it better.

We will always have to maintain a system of price supports for the farmer. He is subject to extremes of weather, to drought, storms, and to various crop diseases and pests. In time of emergency he must increase his acreages. There is every reason to support him, though the rigid rules of today must be revised. This is not good news to some. But whether they like it or not, the fact is that economically we are already one world in the sense of interdependence.

BILLY ROSE

He Left A Big Surprise

When Martin Quint, 71, married Ellie Reynolds, 34, their friends in Nyack didn't give the union much chance of success. Five years later, however, they were ready to admit they had been wrong—Ellie was doing a good job of taking care of Martin, and as for the old coot—well, he was a lot friendlier than anyone had ever thought possible.

On their fifth anniversary, Martin sent Ellie to New York on an errand, filled the parlor with gifts and paper curlicues, and invited a dozen neighbors in for a surprise party. The plan was for a lookout at the railroad depot to phone when he saw Ellie get off the train, and then they would turn out the lights and hide. When Ellie walked in and turned them on again, everyone would yell, "Surprise!"

Well, what happened was a surprise, all right, but there was no yelling. As the front door opened, Quint and his guests heard Ellie whisper, "Sssh! He might be awake!"

"I don't like this sneaking around," said the voice of a man.

"Why don't you ask him for a divorce?"

"Think I'm crazy? He doesn't figure to live much longer, and I'm pretty sure to get the savings and insurance. Thanks for taking me home. See you Tuesday at the regular time."

Then Ellie closed the door and switched on the lights. . . .

Pack? After the embarrassed guests had left, she said to her husband: "I suppose you want me to pack."

"Why should I?" said Martin. "It's only human nature for you to take up with someone nearer your own age."

"Don't you want a divorce?"

"Not unless you insist on it. All I ask is that you stop seeing the old man as long as I'm alive. If you'll agree and put it in writing, I'll fix it so you'll get every cent I've got."

And that's how it was arranged. An agreement was signed and locked in the wall safe, and the couple went on living together.

Of course, the neighbors gossiped a lot, particularly when it was whispered around that Ellie was still seeing the young man, but their talk seemed to make no impression on Martin. Instead, he busied himself with a new hobby—the study of insects—and spent most of his waking hours in a spare room over the garage, mounting butterflies and beetles on small exhibit boards.

"I wouldn't mention this around," he told his wife. "As it is, people think I'm not quite all there."

One evening, just after Ellie had brought him the usual glass of warm milk, Martin began to have convulsions. Ellie phoned the doctor but her husband was having a heart attack, but by the time he arrived, the old man was dead. The doctor examined the body, then called the coroner, and an hour later the corpse, together with the empty milk glass, was taken away.

Warrant Early the following morning a detective rang Ellie's doorbell.

"I have a warrant for your arrest," he said. "According to the coroner, your husband died of cyanide poisoning, and the druggists in town reports that you bought a bottle of the stuff two weeks ago."

"That's right," said Ellie. "Martin used the cyanide to kill the insects he was studying. There are hundreds of specimens in the laboratory over the garage."

"I never heard of his being interested in bugs," said the detective.

"Can I see this laboratory?"

Ellie led the way up the garage stairs and opened the door. There was nothing in the room but a few bits of junk and an old bicycle.

"I'm sorry, but you'll have to come along," said the detective.

"You're the only person who figured to profit by Mr. Quint's death."

"I swear I didn't do it," said Ellie. "Both Martin and I knew he wouldn't live long, and we signed an agreement which explained everything. It's in his study."

She ran into the house, opened the wall safe and took out a brown envelope, but when she tore it open there was nothing inside but a piece of blank paper.

Blank, that is, except for one word pencilled in a childish scrawl—"Surprise!"

They Were Meant for Bigger Things

Jack Tarver's column, which usually occupies this space, will be found today on the opposite page.

WASHINGTON—Congressmen, who were elected for jobs more important, worry about the licensing of this city's fish markets, the honesty of its cops, the pay of its schoolteachers, and whether it's legal for the voteless citizens to shoot predatory birds on the streets.

The lawgivers, who can't seem to believe the inhabitants might better govern themselves, devote a great deal of their valuable time to these items of a municipal nature. The results seldom are satisfactory to the taxpayers, who pay, but have no say about where the money goes.

So the Senate District Committee usually is jammed on meeting days with civic leaders who are irate, not about the state of the world, or even of the nation, but about why aren't there more traffic lights on Fessenden Street?

Now we've got a new unofficial Mayor of Washington, the dapper Sen. Matt Neely, of West Virginia, freshly appointed Chairman of the Committee. I dropped in on his first meeting and I am happy to report that he opened it with prayer. He also read the 127th Psalm, quoted liberally from the Bible, and urged the assembled citizens to hang the table and shout if they expected anything from Congress. The natives quickly got into the mood; they also quoted from the Good Book.

Mrs. Ernest W. Howard, a handsome lady in a green hat representing the North Washington Council, wondered why Congress didn't do something about the frequent flash floods at Fifth and Ingraham Streets. Her neighbors there frequently have to go home by boat. "I hope," said she, "that you will agree with the Biblical quotation that charity begins at home."

Oops! "Madam," replied the Senator. "I have read the Bible through and it doesn't say that. No where does the Bible say anything about charity beginning at home."

His honor turned to the troubles of Mrs.

Leslie B. Wright, in a red hat, who spoke for the Northwest Council of Citizens' Associations. She said it was a delight to have such an attractive chairman as the gentleman from West Virginia.

"It is nice to have such attractive witnesses as you," replied his honor.

One of the things that pained Mrs. Wright was daylight saving time. She's against it and so are all her friends.

"The Congressmen who voted for it said they needed this extra daylight for recreational purposes," she added. "I haven't noticed 'em getting any prettier for this exercise."

Woolsey W. Hall, dignified Negro leader, wanted the Senators to investigate why the District had condemned the Macedonia Baptist Church; this looked like skulduggery to him. Mrs. Franklin G. Sartwell said the Congressmen ought to pass a law providing for the care of firemen who hurt themselves fighting blazes across the District line.

Others wanted a new airport, more traffic lights, more judges, and better schools. Along came Daniel Crystal, a young man representing the Lawyers' Guild.

According to the Bible, the meek shall inherit the earth," he said. "But according to the Senator, the meek shall not get District appropriations from Congress."

Touche. The bells clanged soon thereafter and the Senators moved down the hall to consider the plight of Great Britain and, for that matter, the whole world. The citizens who want to shoot starlings on sight got crowded out. They'll be back later to take up how to get rid of the capital's pesky birds.

THE PULSE OF THE PUBLIC

The Constitution welcomes letters on either side of any subject. They should not exceed 200 words and must be signed, although names will be withheld on request. We regret none can be returned. Address all letters to Editor Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

Price of Eggs

Editor Constitution: This is intended for you and your cartoonist, as I suppose he draws at your direction. It is about the egg cartoon in the paper of Sept. 12.

Would you please consider a few things in relation to the price of eggs? The cost of repairing and erecting buildings, the cost of feed, the cost of labor in even the most unskilled work, the ravages of disease and the cost of medicines and vaccines now necessary for all flocks, the cost of fencing, the cost of a tractor to provide the green feed necessary, the cost of a truck, the time consumed and cost of shavings or other litter for the houses, the time consumed in the cleaning and packing of eggs, the cost of feeders and waterers, and the cost of the baby chicks themselves.

Anyone who works with hens does not work 40 hours a week. It is a seven-day job and things must be done regularly with no haphazard feeding and egg gathering. Also, the flock owner usually has a family to be fed and clothed and kept warm; how about the price of coal for our furnace? Raising eggs and chickens is no longer a sideline for the farmer's wife. It is a highly skilled competitive business. We do not ask for Government subsidies but we do ask for a little more of an even break in relation to what we have to sell and what we have to buy.

Baldwin County. READER.
(Editor's Note: The cartoon was inspired by the fact the Government has bought and stored more than 2,000,000,000 eggs in price support. The farmer must be protected. "How?" is the problem.)

Fine Expression

Editor Constitution: The Constitution is as necessary a part of my breakfast as coffee, and the editorial page is my joy and delight. Your column, "Science and Concept of God," expressed so beautifully what I have felt for so long a time.

True Ideals of the South

Editor Constitution: What inspired Margaret Mitchell to write such a book as "Gone With the Wind"? Could it be that she was the living expression (that came to her from environment and heredity) of the true ideals of the South and its people of that time, the Civil War period? And in writing her book she gave expression to these true ideals, painted a word picture of these ideals.

And why such universal and continuous popularity of "Gone With the Wind"? (Next to the Bible.) Could it be that the real heroism of the people of the South, their spiritual qualities of bravery, courage, sacrifice, stability of character, etc., are more truthfully and honestly portrayed in her book than ever before? There must be a very solid foundation to her great book, and this may be it.

Morgan Descendants

Editor Constitution: I would like to correspond with any of the descendants of either Abram or Thomas Morgan, who were born in what is now West Virginia in the latter part of 1790s or the early 1800s. One of the above brothers left Virginia about 1820 and settled in Georgia.

No Utopia Yet

Editor Constitution: From the beginning of time and throughout the ages, man has been seeking what is now commonly called a Utopia very much on the order of the dreams of the present-day British Government. But without success he is still running into the age-old theory that seems to take place each time a Government attempts to take the laws of nature away from nature's place, a stone wall that is the backbone of Christian nations, the only Utopia is hereafter sometimes called Heaven.

As a student of international law, affairs and the several fields of political science, I am forever coming into very close contact with the majority of types of Government that now and has in the past existed in this world, and I have come to the conclusion that our Federal republic type of government, decentralized to State, county, city governments, serves more people and acts as a counter-check on our national government than any that is now in power on this earth.

I will back with all the power given me by the Almighty Maker the stand taken by the recent National Encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars as regards world government and fight to the last breath of air the stand as presented last Sunday night by the National World Federalists over the American Forum of the Air in the idea of "we the American people entering into any kind of pact with the Atlantic Treaty nations to start the ball rolling toward world government."

A Handbook for Jurors

The only time I ever served on a jury I spent the whole episode of service in a state of considerable confusion. I took an oath, but the man who administered it mumbled his words and talked so fast I didn't understand any of it except the final phrase, "So help you God." A great deal of the procedure of the trial I didn't understand either, and a lot of testimony from the witness stand was given in voices so low that I couldn't hear. And I didn't know whether I had the right to speak up and ask the witness to talk louder or not. There were a lot of questions that arose in my mind as the case went on that the lawyers never asked, and I also didn't know whether or not I had the right, as a juror, to ask those questions or not.

In other words, I was, I suppose, just an average juror, a somewhat confused citizen trying to do his duty to the commonwealth and not quite comprehending what was going on, nor what his responsibilities were.

In the belief that most folks are equally bewildered when they are drawn for jury service, the Atlanta Bar Association has prepared a little book called "A Handbook for Jurors." It is being presented to jurors serving in Fulton County courts this month—the first time in Georgia history that a simple book of instructions has ever been issued to the 12 good men and true in the jury box.

It is brief, lucid, and simply written. It explains to the juror how he got on the jury list in the first place, who may be excused from jury duty (ministers of the gospel, physicians and druggists, school teachers, and, strangely enough, telegraph operators), and the difference between being excused on a challenge for cause (for already having formed an opinion in the case, or being kin to one of the litigants), and a peremptory challenge (for which no reason need be given except that one lawyer or the other thinks you might be against his client).

They even quote the oath the juror takes, for which I am glad. It is a dignified and impressive piece of prose, too, and just so a lot of jurors will know what they have sworn to in the past I reprint it here:

"You shall well and truly try each cause submitted to you during the present term, it reads, and a true verdict give according to the law as given you in charge, and the opinion you entertain of the evidence produced to you, to the best of your skill and knowledge, without favor or affection to either party, provided you are not discharged from the consideration of the case submitted. So help you God."

Then it goes on to explain about the opening statements of the lawyers, which are not evidence, but merely brief outlines of what each party will contend, and about the procedure of examining witnesses on direct examination, cross-examination, and redirect examination. And it makes the point clear that if a juror can't hear what's being said, or didn't understand it, he can call on the court to ask the witness to speak up, or to repeat a word he mumbled.

Even after the prosecution and the defense have rested, the judge has charged the jury—explaining to the jurors the questions they must decide and the law applying to each—and the jury has retired to consider its verdict, a juror can still call on the court for further enlightenment. If, as often happens, an argument arises in the jury room as to exactly what the judge said the points at issue were, or as to what a witness said, the juror can send a written request through the bailiff to the judge, asking for further instructions, or asking that the written record of the trial be read to them.

During the trial, the book says, a juror can also ask the witness a direct question if he wishes, though this is not often done and shouldn't be abused. He has a right to ask that he be allowed to witness the scene where the accident, the murder, or whatever it was took place—and he "ought not" the book says not say "must not," read about the trial or listen to reports of it over the radio. A juror is under the authority of the court during his period of service, and he can be fined for contempt if he shows up late.

In the jury room, the book says, conversation should never be so loud that it can be heard outside the room, and until the verdict is announced no outsider should have any inkling of what it is to be. Until a verdict is reached, the booklet points out, the juror shouldn't dawdle about playing cards and reading magazines.

In the jury room, the booklet suggests, discussion should be free and frank between jurors, and a man should not hesitate to change an originally held opinion if free discussion proves him to have been in error. If every juror is fair and reasonable—and courteous in his attitude toward his fellows, the book says, nearly every jury can agree and thus save the time, the trouble and the expense of a new trial. No juror, though, is expected to compromise his conscience simply to reach a verdict. No juror should rush into a hastily considered verdict merely because its members are tired and want to go home, though, for no matter how trivial a civil case may be, it is a matter of profound importance to the folks involved.

It is a good little book and I have only touched upon the highlights here. It should do much toward enlightening new and inexperienced jurors, and should help them to bring that "true verdict" which has been the goal of countless the founding of the jury system in 1215, when King John of England signed the Magna Carta.

"The verdict," the little booklet says, "will always show how reasonable, fair, just and sensible the jury is. It may indicate to others who may have disputes in the future whether they can wisely and safely submit their disputes to a jury for settlement, or whether it is better judgment to suffer wrongs in silence or to pay claims which are unjust, because they are afraid of jury justice."

The War Never Ended for Them

AMERICANA, Brazil—Everyone knows, of course, that the War Between the States did not end at Appomattox Courthouse as the Yankee-written history books so blandly state. But few realize there were many for whom the war never ended. Of between 8,000 and 10,000 emigrated people who left the Southland following the fall of the Confederacy, more than half came to Brazil. That's Cemetery a few kilometers from here, Brazilians granite markers on which have been chiseled an unfamiliar flag and such unfamiliar English epitaphs as:

IN MEMORY
COL. WM. H. NORRIS
BORN IN OGLETHORPE COUNTY
GEORGIA, U. S. A.
Sept. 17, 1800, and Died
July 13, 1893, Age 93 Years

That's why, in Sao Paulo and Rio, in Campinas and Santos, one frequently encounters the third-generation Brazilians with such familiar Southern names as Hardeman, Williamson and Green; Wright, Garner and Cook; Ferguson, Thatcher and Matthews; Moore, Cullens and Lee.

There were four major colonies of Confederate expatriates in Brazil, in addition to a great many families who came not as a part of any group. To understand the magnitude of the exodus, one must realize that the organized colonists chartered entire ships for the voyage, having first sent surveying parties to Brazil to investigate and decide upon sites for their new homes. So great was the interest in the possibilities that a book, "Brazil, the Home for Southerners," published in 1866, enjoyed a tremendous sale in a South which was hard-pressed to buy food, much less literature.

Of the four colonies, the one at Americana—or Vila Americana, as it was originally called—was by far the most successful. Under the leadership of Col. Norris, whose epitaph is above, and his son, Dr. Robert Norris, whose marker bears only the Masonic emblem and the simple inscription, "A Confederate Veteran," Americana flourished while other attempts to farm Brazilian coastlands were failing. As a consequence, many of those such as the Texas group organized by two men named McMullens and Bowen, later drifted inland to the vicinity of Vila Americana. Others gave up in disgust and went home.

The going was difficult. Enthusiastic advance representatives such as Maj. Robert Merriwether, Dr. H. A. Shaw and the Rev. Ballard S. Dunn had written truthfully that a plow was virtually unknown in Brazil but overenthusiastically the possibilities of the land under "advanced methods of cultivation." Brazil teemed with insects which were unknown in the States. The long rainy season and a lint-devouring caterpillar made cotton, on which the Southerners had based their hopes, almost impossible to produce. It was only after they turned, in desperation, to watermelons and sugar cane that most of the colonists became self-sustaining.

Nevertheless, the irreconcilables went resolutely ahead. Malaria took a terrible toll and men in the fields were forced to work with a smoking plait of twine tied to their hats to keep the bugs away. But they built a church and a school and formed—Col. Norris, his sons, Robert and H. Clay, William Terrell, Robert Daniel, Henry Shurlock, Bony Green, Macema Smith, the Revs. Newman and Thomas, and the only non-Southerner, a German emigrant listed simply as "Mister Damm"—one of the first Masonic lodges in Brazil. The Georgian and Colonial style of the houses which the more affluent built, incidentally, is in considerable contrast to the surrounding architecture.

They allowed their children to speak only English and never lost contact with the States.

"I was brought up on The Atlanta Constitution," recalls Richard Pyles, 65, son of one of the original Southern expatriates. "My father took it as long as he lived."

"I remember Uncle Joe Whitaker used to take The Constitution," says Mrs. Julia Norris Jones, daughter of Dr. Norris. "Everybody in the community used to pass them around."

Another Georgian, Joe Cole, brought along the only Negro to accompany the Confederates, an ancient woman named Sylvia. Slavery still existed in Brazil but importation of new slaves had been abolished in 1855. Still, Sylvia was determined to come and Cole paid her fare. She was a character about Americana for a great many years. She never learned to speak Portuguese and was highly disdainful of Brazilian blacks.

Don Pedro II, Emperor of Brazil, welcomed the Southerners and offered free land along the coast to any who would cultivate it for five years. Joseph Ingraham Green, an Atlantan who lost five sons in the War Between the States, was one who took advantage of this opportunity but gave up in the fourth year. His son later married the first little Confederate born in Brazil, Katherine, the daughter of John Rogers Dumas. She is still living. Her recollections, along with those written before her death by Jenny Steagall Norris, who came from Gonzalez, Texas, in 1868 at the age of 18, give perhaps the most authentic picture of the tribulations the colonists faced. Jenny Steagall's family came, along with 300 others, on the "Tartar," a ship which wrote War Between the States history as the blockade runner "Wren."

The "Tartar's" voyage was more or less uneventful, but not so that of the "Brig Derby" on which another group of Texans came to Brazil. It was first detained by Federal authorities and then wrecked on the east coast of Cuba. This necessitated sending a member of the party to New York to arrange for another vessel. Finally after three months, they arrived in Brazil at ill-fated Iguaçu, only to disband a short while later, some to go to Americana, the majority back to Texas.

It is hardly necessary to report that most of the Southerners did not find what they were looking for in a Brazil not only in the process of abolishing slavery but which was already the great testing ground for the theories of the miscegenationists. They kept strictly to themselves, intermarried within the colony, spoke only English in their houses and sent their children back to the States to school. Their bitterness in time faded and they held picnics on the Fourth of July and even displayed the Stars and Stripes alongside the Stars and Bars.

Many of those who went back to the U. S. to college returned there. The others, for the most part, still speak of themselves—after three generations in Brazil—as Georgians, Texans, Mississippians and Alabamians. Almost without exception, Brazil has been kind to those who stayed here. They have prospered and gained prominence as perhaps they never would have in the war-ravaged Southland. Even so, they have never relinquished their community identity, never accepted the designation of Brazilian, as do so readily—indeed, proudly—the hundreds of thousands of Germans, Italians and Portuguese who have settled here.

And, for all their physical comforts, there is something a little sad, something a little pathetic, in people who nostalgically speak, in an unmistakable Southern accent, of a place they or their parents never saw as "home."

BOB CONSIDINE

Suggestions to Editors, Readers

NEW YORK—Reporters always have sure cures for the ills of editors. Usually the panaceas boil down to "why don't you use my stuff, if you really want to put your sheet over?" Which is ending a sentence with a preposition.

Out of the goodness of a simple heart, I am herewith handing to the editors of America an idea, and I might add that the only editor I've ever known who was remotely interested in it was the late, great and resourceful Cissie Patterson.

Seems to me (and this may offend a lot of people) that much of the news in today's papers eludes the reading public. I don't mean the vital statistics of deaths, disaster, weather and who was seen with who at the El Storko.

I MEAN the potent and usually highly opaque stories that have to do with war, peace, U. N., our dignified dependents, the value of their money, the need of them in case of conflict, the major questions confronting Congress and your State Legislatures.

This is the stuff that, by and large, is skimmed by the reading public or listened to, on the air, with the tin ear that the public tends to cup toward commercials.

It is of some other realm. It is a play whose characters are people who deal in big words and dance gestures that seem to have no relationship with the average man's breadwinning and his way of life. A man trying to keep from becoming 10 dollars overdrawn at the bank—a condition which most of America seems to be facing today—cannot comprehend a digit followed by more than six ciphers and, being unable to comprehend it, flings it into that nether-land populated by the characters in Alice in Wonderland.

BUT OUR grants to Europe, our promises to U. N., our involvement in many countries which (to most of us) remain only pink, purple and yellow blotches on a map, affect us deeply, and will alter and control the lives of our children and our grandchildren—and their grandchildren. Whether we know it or not, we are paying for the opening of new colonies in history, clearing new vistas, penetrating forests of diplomacy undreamt of only a few years ago.

So my idea is this: Explain tough stories to the people. Seems to me that the least-read article in each day's paper is the story of what happened in U. N. the previous day. Most editors play it near the front of the paper because they sense that it is important and do not wish to appear gauche or insular by putting it back among the goitre cures. But their readers don't grasp it intuitively and, because of that hesitation, don't read it—though what is happening is a place named Lake Success might very well change their lives.

My hunch is that we need inserts or boxes fitted into the body of difficult news stories and headed, "What this means to you."

If Mr. Truman makes a speech saying that he will tolerate nothing less of Congress than the full endorsement of the Atlantic Pact or this or that, why not plump into the middle of the piece a little notation (in agate) to the effect that all of the above and below abracadabra means that you will pay 10, or 15, or 30 percent more tax next year? Or the year after.

Best Show In London

The richest entertainment I've enjoyed so far in London are the soap-box spellbinders in Hyde Park. There are Socialists, Communists, Anarchists, Pacifists and many I could not identify, for I couldn't tell what they were for by what they said.

All of them are against something and they seem to agree on only one thing—their antagonism to the United States. Capitalists, Fascists and Wall Street are their pet hates.

One fanatic got so rough in his bitterness against us, that I had the urge to take the stump. Just when I reached the boiling point, he began to work on the King, the Pope, the Conservative and Labor Parties, and I felt I was in good company.

Hecklers provide the comedy. When one speaker blamed Wall Street for the food shortage, a heckler shouted, "There's no food because you won't work." When the speaker paused to scratch his head, another heckler interrupted, "Don't disturb them, let 'em rest."

I've attended similar shows on Boston Common, but there's more variety over here, more polyglot. These fanatics have world perspective. And these public forums serve useful purpose. Even men who don't know what they think should have an opportunity to let off steam. About all England seems to be enjoying now is free speech.

HARRIS' SNIPING

(W. D. Tutt in Elberton Star)
The irrepressible Roy Harris, the Warwick of Georgia and evil genius of the Talmadge administration, with "damnable iteration" of the governor's many blunders, while pretending all the while to be on close terms of friendship with the worried chief executive, now charges that illegal liquor has been going on in dry Georgia with the full knowledge of the Revenue Department.

In availing himself of every opportunity to harass the Governor, Harris is evidently taking advantage of the fact that he knows too much to fear an attack from the present administration. Some time ago, it will be recalled, he stated that it was a grave error for officeholders not to tell the people from whom they received campaign contributions, from which it may be inferred that he is in possession of information that might prove to be a political bombshell. At any rate, it must be tantalizing to Talmadge to be mercilessly pilloried by a former lieutenant without being able to retaliate for fear of disclosures that might wreck his chances of re-election.

a-field from the Peachtree Street shooting.

"We're trying to try something about a shooting out here," Judge Moore said. "Now we're getting 'way down there in Florida.'"

Subsequently, Lockwood explained that he went to Mrs. Carpenter's apartment at the request of her mother and found her in bed suffering from an overdose of heart tonic. He said he went "as her attorney" and stayed only 15 minutes during which time both Mrs. Minnie Sullivan, Mrs. Carpenter's mother, and Barbara, were in and out of the room.

Attorney Barrett told the court he had not planned to call Barbara as a witness but had changed his mind and asked to be permitted to send her to the witness room.

Asst. Sol. Ogden Doeremus, making the prosecution's opening statement to the jury, said the State would prove that Judge Carpenter's financial obligations to Lockwood were at least a part of his motive in the alleged attempt to murder. He said the State would prove that Judge Carpenter stalked Lockwood and his wife, Mrs. Helen Carpenter, while they, in turn, were attempting to catch the Judge and Mrs. Estelle Manful together in a cabin at Bishop's Lake.

Doeremus said the State would not attempt to try the domestic relations court case of the Carpenters or the Lockwoods but he said he would prove Carpenter "laid the first he told Judge Carpenter in wait for a woman that he had forsaken for another woman" case, with the "premeditated design of Judge Carpenter gave him a powder examination by Atty. Elbert Tuttle, special prosecutor the name to be filled in in an-working with Webb and Doeremus. Lockwood testified lengthily about his financial arrangements with Carpenter. He said he lent the Judge $30,000, which was subsequently repaid him at seven percent interest, and later sums of $3,000 on three occasions and $6,000 on one occasion.

He said he did some tax work for Carpenter and offered to write off the $6,700 which the Judge owed him for that if Carpenter would get Mrs. Manful out of the Imperial Hotel.

Relating what defense attorneys derisively labeled a "fatherly talk," Lockwood said he told Carpenter: "Bob, I understand you're having trouble with your wife. Is there anything I can do to help?" He said the Judge told him part of his trouble was financial and he offered to cancel Carpenter's tax work indebtedness to him "if you will get rid of that woman upstairs." He said Carpenter promised to have Mrs. Manful out of the Imperial Hotel by the following Saturday but failed to do so.

The witness said he heard that Judge Carpenter had threatened to break his neck if he did not stop interfering with his affair with Mrs. Manful and when he to murder. He said the State faced Carpenter with the rumors, Lockwood said Carpenter "put his hand on my back and said, 'John, if I said that to anybody but you, I must have been stupidly drunk.'"

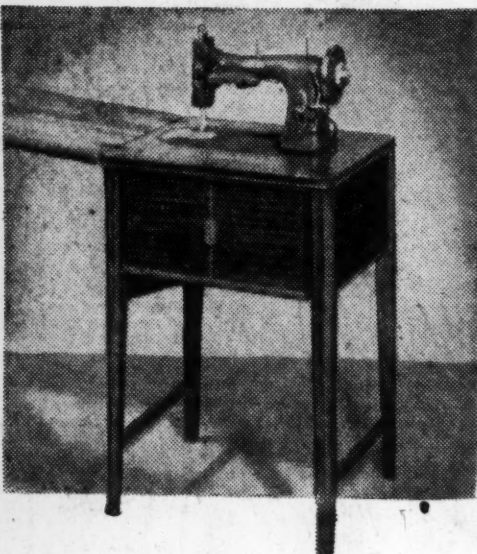

Lockwood said he replied, "Well, you're stupidly drunk too often."

Defense attorneys maintained that Lockwood acted for Mrs. Carpenter while retained to represent the judge. Lockwood said from Mrs. Manful while retained to represent the judge. Lockwood said from Mrs. Manful while retained to represent the judge.

Cancer Center Kept Busy by Flow of Calls

The American Cancer Society's new Atlanta Cancer Information Center—first of its kind in Georgia—has been kept busy by a steady flow of calls and callers since its opening was announced Sunday in The Constitution.

The Center, located at 179 Spring St., N. W., gives nonmedical information about all aspects of cancer. But Mrs. Dora Johnson, Director, emphasized that it does not give medical advice or recommend specific physicians to prospective patients.

"The Center's function," she explained, "is to give nontechnical information to anyone who asks for it and to serve as a base for the cancer education program in Greater Atlanta."

Mrs. Johnson said scores of telephone calls had been received by the Center and a large number of personal visits. Information will be given by telephone (Main 1989), but Mrs. Johnson recommended personal interviews at the Center on Spring Street at Carnegie Way as "more satisfactory."

other State where, Lockwood said, the judge wanted his wife to get a divorce without publicity.

The witness said he accompanied Mrs. Carpenter and her mother to Florida to see if a divorce could be legally obtained there and they stayed in a tourist court where reservations had been made for them by Juddie Johnson, manager of the Copa Caprice, night club in the Imperial Hotel.

He denied that he and Mrs. Carpenter occupied the same room or were caught drinking together or wandering around the grounds holding hands.

"Didn't Mr. Bishop (proprietor of the tourist court) come and catch you and Mrs. Carpenter in a room together?" asked Barrett.

"No," cried Lockwood, "and I'd like to tell you what I think of that question!"

In answer to questions about his drinking with Mrs. Carpenter, Lockwood answered, "How would I know whether I had a drink or not, unless I kept a diary?"

Asked if he had ever spent the night with Mrs. Carpenter at any tourist court, Lockwood replied "No, never. Mrs. Carpenter is a very decent woman."

"That's a conclusion, your honor!" cried Defense Atty. William Boyd, leaping to his feet.

Lockwood was the only witness interrogated during the day. He will resume the stand at 9:30 a. m. today for further cross-examination and rebuttal questions.

Judge Moore expressed the hope the trial would be terminated by tomorrow at the latest. At the opening of the trial Judge Moore ordered all spectators to check their firearms, if any, with the clerk. He invoked an old English law, requiring even officers of the court to leave their guns outside the courtroom.

A rifle and three pistols, taken from Lockwood and his sons on subpoenas duces tecum, were turned over the clerk for safekeeping, along with permits and other documentary evidence which is expected to be introduced by defense attorneys later.

Lockwood, talking quietly, but frequently in a belligerent tone, when answering a question put to him under cross-examination said he and Mrs. Carpenter had spent the evening before he was shot driving out the Marietta highway. He said Mrs. Carpenter was ill and asked him to get her some whiskey and later they ate and then spent "about three hours" parked by a side road, waiting to see Carpenter and Mrs. Manful drive by.

He said the shooting had resulted in the loss of the sight of one of his eyes and left him suffering back and neck injuries.

Members of the jury, which was selected in less than an hour, are: F. S. Laird, M. G. Clapp, Clarence U. Feibelman, B. W. Williams, G. M. Howell, M. H. Coan, Ware Hutcheson, William E. Hardman, Paul D. Long, Clarence W. Turner, J. A. Rabern, and Wilmer T. Elard, Jr.

Mrs. Carpenter did not appear in court. Sol. Gen. Webb answered for her when she was called and pointed out that she could not be required to testify either for or against her husband, under Georgia law.

with contract problems. And some CIO leaders, critical of CIO President Philip Murray in the past, have been quick to find fault with the steel settlement proposal.

Major labor disputes pending include:

The CIO United Auto Workers has asked Ford to boost hourly wages eight to 10 cents over the present $1.65 average. The union also seeks pension and insurance benefits higher than those recommended in the steel industry.

Some 16,000 CIO United Rubber Workers are on strike against B. F. Goodrich Company. They are seeking to hike their $1.65 hour wage by 25 cents and $100 a month company-financed pensions.

Pay boosts also are being sought by the CIO Mine, Mill and Smelter Worker, the CIO Farm Equipment Workers, the CIO United Packinghouse Workers and the CIO United Electrical Workers.

The surface temperature of the sun is estimated at about 11,000 degrees, and the heat in its interior is believed to reach many million degrees, the National Geographic Society notes.

TAXES

publish a Georgia Tax Assessing Manual.

This manual will provide tables of values on standardized equipment. It also will provide laws and legal rulings concerning property assessing. A committee to draft the manual is expected to be appointed tonight.

Georgia assessors need this manual more than they need any other one tool, Aldro Jenks, School Director, said. He observed that Maryland is bringing about statewide property tax equalization through such a manual.

Jenks, in addressing a dinner meeting last night, declared every Georgia taxpayer owes it to himself to demand competent tax assessors—since he has to share the tax load.

He said the citizen should see that they are protected from the ravages of political and economic pressure.

Jenks said there are far too many tax assessors. He recommended merging the large number of part time assessors, many of whom are totally incompetent, into one full time professionally trained assessor.

NUTRITION RESEARCH

No One Food Is Fattening

By AGNES REASOR OLMSTEAD
Constitution Food Editor

There's no one food that may be considered a fattening food as such. It is the total amount of food eaten each day in relation to body needs that determines whether pounds are put on or taken off.

Quantitatively, nutrition, in terms of body weight, can be compared to a bank account. In the body there are stores of essential nutrients—the established or original daily balance, comparable to the balance figure in your bank book.

WEIGHT BALANCE

If you deposit five dollars in your bank account each day and draw it out again, the original balance remains unchanged. If you deposit more than you withdraw, a surplus remains. Even if this surplus is small each day, at the end of a year your bank book balance will be a considerably higher figure.

Similarly with nutrition—if the amount of food eaten meets but does not exceed what is used up or spent in the form of energy each day, the body will neither gain nor lose weight, the balance will remain the same. However, if more food is eaten than required, a surplus accumulates. This surplus is converted by the body into fat.

LESS FOOD "SHRINKS" BODY

The comparison with the bank account holds good, too, in reducing diets and their effect on body weight. If less is deposited in the bank each day than is drawn out, the bank account will "shrink," the balance at the end of each succeeding day will be less.

When the amount of food eaten each day is less in calories than the body "spends" in the form of energy, the body must draw upon its surplus, its stored-up fat, and "spend" it for energy.

If there is even a small deficit each day between energy intake in the form of food, and energy expenditure, the body will "shrink," the waistline will reduce, body weight will go down.

DIET MUST BE BALANCED

To maintain nutritional health for the overweight as well as the normal person, all nutrients are needed. Proper nutrition for everyone is supplied only by a balanced diet.

Even in a reducing diet, no particular food should be excluded. To deprive a reducing diet of one of these constituents, for instance carbohydrate, would be nutritionally wrong since carbohydrates are essential for the oxidation and utilization of fats, including the fat stored by the body. Fats in turn are needed for the absorption and utilization of important vitamins and as carriers of the valuable unsaturated fatty acids.

NO ONE FOOD IS FATTENING. It is immaterial whether too much is eaten of one food or another; whether the food intake is too high in protein, in carbohydrate, or in fat. In the normal person, as long as the total is more than is needed, fat will be deposited and weight will increase.

Thus, we see two things: first, no food is in itself fattening; second, all foods are fattening if eaten in excessive amounts or if too much is eaten in general.

MRS. JOHNNIE F. HALES

Mrs. Hales was before her recent marriage Miss Jean Fuller, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Tipton, the ceremony having taken place at the Post Chapel, Atlanta General Depot, with Chaplain E. Smith-DeMille Wedding Told Miss Janet Claire Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Morgan Smith, became the bride Sunday afternoon of Harry Ware DeMille, III, son of Mrs. Harry W. DeMille, Jr., and the late Mr. DeMille. The ceremony took place at the Winship Chapel of the First Presbyterian Church, with Dr. William V. Gardner officiating.

Bill Jordan was the best man. Usher-groomsman were Jack M. Smith, Jr., brother of the bride, and Dan Plaster, cousin of the bridegroom.

Miss Martha Jo Cravens was the maid of honor and the bride's only attendant.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore white satin trimmed in seed pearls, and a veil of illusion, belonging to Mrs. Chester A. Roush. The bride carried orchids and tuberoses.

Following the ceremony the bride's parents entertained at a reception at their home on Morris Drive. After a wedding trip to Savannah Beach, the couple will reside in Atlanta.

SALLY FORTH Says:

Mr. and Mrs. King To Observe 25th Wedding Anniversary

On Saturday, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde King will celebrate their silver wedding anniversary and, true to the custom which they began 24 years ago, they are planning to slip away together for their twenty-fifth honeymoon, without telling any of their family or friends what their destination will be.

One thing, however, is certain. It can't be too far distant, for they plan to attend a trap shoot in Albany on Sept. 21.

The entire King family—Mr. and Mrs. King and their debutante daughter, Frances—are avid trap shoot enthusiasts. Mrs. King holds the distinction of being one of the three top-ranking women trap shooters in the United States. Frances, following in the footsteps of her parents, recently set a record at the Grand American trap shoot in Vandalia, Ohio—a record which no other woman has set for 50 years.

But getting back to the King anniversary. Mrs. King, the former Frances Poole, was married to Mr. King at a fashionable evening ceremony which took place Sept. 17, 1924, at the home of the bride's parents, Ovidia, on Cascade Road, with a reception following in the lovely gardens surrounding the house.

Mrs. Ralph Paris, the former Edythe Coleman, was maid of honor. Mrs. T. O. Poole was her daughter's matron of honor, and the bridesmaids included Mrs. Trenton Tunnell, Mrs. Charles Thompson, of Thomaston; Mrs. William Dodenhoff, of Greenville, S. C.; and Mrs. Eugene Bryan. Mrs. Dale Fleming was her aunt's junior bridesmaid, and the late John King was junior groomsmen. Mrs. Alfred Michael, of Greenwich, Conn., the former Irene Woodruff, was flower girl.

The late Clyde King, Sr., served as best man for his son, and the groomsmen were James Dunlap, William Hunter, III, T. O. Poole, Jr., and the late John Lindsey, of Moultrie.

Mrs. King was scheduled to bow with her contemporaries during the 1924-25 debutante season, but she sidetracked the festivities by joining young matron ranks.

The Ebersoles "Weathered the Storm"

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Ebersole and their sons and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Pete Ebersole and Mr. and Mrs. William Ebersole, have indeed "weathered the storm" in recent weeks.

The family group rented a cottage at Atlantic Beach, Fla., for a month, hoping to have a quiet, restful vacation together. Since their arrival at the Florida resort, there have been three hurricanes in that vicinity, the last one doing a tremendous amount of damage in and around near-by Jacksonville.

Now that the month is up, and the storms are past, the Ebersoles are coming home, arriving tomorrow in Atlanta. They have had lots of fun, despite the weather.

For a Very Special Reason

When Anne Johnson became the bride of Harris Mills, Jr., on Saturday at the Druid Hills Baptist Church, she wore the wedding gown of one of her bridesmaids, Mrs. Winter Griffith, the former Julia Ann Dobson.

And for a very special reason. Anne and Julia Ann started to kindergarten together and continued together all through grammar and high school days. Then they had two years at Shorter, followed by two years at the University of Georgia, and all that time they were inseparable friends.

Stardust's bride also wore a gown which was lent to her by Carmen Shaver, which is more than a hundred years old, and has been worn by 25 other brides.

LET'S SEE NOW

Choose Fine Art For Sensory Appeal

By DORIS LOCKERMAN
Constitution Associate Editor

It's all in the lift.

If you have visited museums and observed rapt young men or women or seedy-looking oldsters standing glued to a spot in front of their favorite Picasso or Rembrandt, you may have wondered what they see in those pieces of canvas that are so compelling.

That, the expert says, is the $64 question in the art field. If you sigh over it, laugh with it, if it sets your imagination whirling or your dreams skipping, it has that indefinable thing that makes it good. It is somewhere between emotion and inspiration and called, for want of a better term, expression.

The South, it seems, is full of experimentalists, and many of them have converged upon Atlanta during the four seasons the Junior League and Davison's have team up with High Museum to present their works for competitive purchase prizes in the Southeastern Art Exhibition. There is every "ism" in the book in the brushes of the Southeastern artists. There are abstractionists, modernists, conservatives, traditional painters, surrealists, and they work in landscapes, still life, figures and figure composition. There are an infinite variety of colors that intrigue the Southern palettes, and an especially outstanding water colorists work their magic in these parts.

All of these will be represented in the warehouse this week-end when the Art July will begin their vigorous winnowing to decide which contributions are eligible for the high standards. No picture will be accepted for showing free of judging, as is so often the case in art hangings.

Portraits of the photographic type will probably remain in the warehouse. No matter how fine the drawing of Aunt Emma at her best, the judges will be looking for more than a purely illustrative picture, and a literal copy of the dear soul's sweet nature.

Everybody will be on the lookout for a Grandma Moses nestling among the prissy little primitives, but it isn't likely they'll find one. Primitives add spice to a show, but it isn't often they have snowflakes done in sequins and pass a jury's critical eye.

Incidentally, Atlanta is still quite a way from the left bank of the Seine, artistically speaking, but art schools in connection with the art museums and the art departments of numerous colleges are so competent in most places that the interest and quality of art in the South is rapidly challenging that being produced elsewhere in the nation.

8 Georgia Towns Ask
Low-Rent Project Aid

By GEORGE VANCE

At least 41 Georgia towns and cities were taking steps this week to push the State's Tobacco Road stigma farther back on the ancient history shelves of public libraries. They were planning public-housing steps under the U. S. Housing Act of 1949.

Representatives of the 41 localities were telling Mayors, City Councilmen and City Commissioners how their localities can get loans for low-cost housing projects under the new act.

The representatives had just been to Atlanta, where they received first-hand information from U. S. housing officials at a two-day "bull session" sponsored by the Georgia Association of Local Housing Authorities.

Eight of the State's local housing authorities already have asked the Government to help finance low-rent projects through applications to the Public Housing Administration's Southeastern office here, according to PHA records.

These cities include Atlanta, Albany, Marietta, Columbus (800 units were granted Columbus yesterday), Athens, Gainesville, Rome and Moultrie. Both Gainesville and Moultrie recently established local housing authorities to take advantage of the new act, while the others have been operating under the old act of 1937.

Two other cities, Cedartown and Thomasville, have asked PHA to re-evaluate loan applications which were made under the old act and deferred by the war. Government officials said the three other local housing authorities, Brunswick, Decatur and Augusta, were expected to make application soon.

Because the Georgia State Assembly has authorized the establishment of local housing authorities in towns of 2,500 population or more, PHA officials said they believed more local authorities would be organized in other cities and more loan applications would be received shortly.

Delegates from the 41 towns at last week's meeting told reporters their cities were interested in the low-rent programs, but action would have to be made by the local city commissions and city councils.

Local housing authorities are organized as public corporations, whose members are appointed by the mayor, city manager or council. As public corporations, they are separate from the communities "bodies politic." PHA officials explained.

A total of 191,700 low-rent homes were provided in 268 localities in the nation under the 1937 Act, and the public housing portion of the 1949 Act merely amends the old law to authorize Federal assistance for construction of 810,000 additional dwellings in a six-year program.

COMMERCE REPORT

Georgia Building Up

25 Percent Over 1948

Less hampered by the scarcity of building materials, Georgians began slicing deep in the promised postwar pie in the first half of 1949—building new homes, new buildings, and doing those extra things for the public highway and public plumbing systems that were impossible in the war's early aftermath.

U. S. Department of Commerce figures show that new construction of all forms in the State was 25 percent greater during the first six months of this year than it was during the corresponding period of 1948. Approximately $149,000,000 was spent in 1949 in comparison to $118,500,000 in 1948.

The bulk of the sum went into new private residences, according to C. Parker Persons, the Commerce Department's regional director here.

A total of $47,000,000 was put in new private residential building, he said. Private non-residential construction totaled $25,000,000; public utility construction operations cost $34,800,000; $11,400,000 was spent on new public non-residential work; $14,800,000 on highways; $4,300,000 on sewer and water facilities; and $9,300,000 on all other public construction activities such as military, naval and miscellaneous public service enterprises.

Checking his figures by percentage, Persons found that the tempo of public building construction was much greater than private construction in the comparison of the two six-month periods.

Private residential building gained only two percent, and private non-residential building was up 13 percent. Truman Foe Leading in Pennsylvania JOHNSTOWN, Pa., (UP)—John Saylor, Republican, Johnstown, held an early lead over his Democratic opponent, Mrs. Robert L. Coffey last night in the special Congressional election in the twenty-sixth Pennsylvania District. The outcome is regarded as a possible indication of the reaction to the Truman program.

Saylor, who waged an anti-Truman, anti-Socialist state campaign showed unexpected strength in scattered returns from Cambria County to pile up 8,659 votes to Mrs. Coffey's 6,817 votes in 38 of the district's 325 precincts.

The Republican, seeking the Congressional vacancy created by the airplane death of Mrs. Coffey's son, Robert L. Coffey, Jr., last April, was running ahead, as expected, in the other two counties—Armstrong and Indiana.

Returns from Cambria County, where a heavy industrial vote and a strong Democratic machine helped the late Congressman to win the Congressional seat last year, showed Mrs. Coffey losing votes in heretofore strong Democratic districts.

Three Injured In Atlanta Auto Crash

Three persons were injured last night in an automobile crash at Butler and Harris Streets, police said.

Mrs. Lorena Ring Brooks, 25, of 645 Kennella Dr., S. W., was admitted to Craford W. Long Hospital with a fractured collarbone and other injuries; Linda Carol Brooks, her five-month-old daughter, was admitted with a bruised head and face and Mrs. Alice Russell, 31, of 645 Kennella Dr., with a possible fracture of the skull, cuts and bruises.

P. L. H. Hammond and C. T. Dopson said an auto driven by Mrs. Brooks was going north on Butler Street when it was struck by a car operated east on Harris by Luther Williams, Negro, of 184 Meritts Ave., N. E. Williams was booked for failing to yield the right of way and accident—speeding, leaving the scene of an accident and failing to possess a driver's license.

Boys High Class of '24 Marks 25th Anniversary

By GORDON SAWYER

It has been 25 years since the Boys High Class of 1924 graduated, but they can still tell you all about the big paddle Dave Johnson called "Sternonian."

The class of '24 held its Silver Anniversary Banquet last night at the Biltmore Hotel, and as their token of appreciation to a man they consider a good teacher, gave Prof. Johnson a fancy autographed purple and white paddle, "Old Justice" herself.

The paddle was presented by classmate Jake ("I got it more than anyone else") Hirsch.

"Mr. Johnson was basketball coach at Boys High then and a well-known member of the school," recalls class member Bob Shivers. "But he used to keep order with a model of old 'Sternonian' I remember he used to stand in the back of the room."

"In the front of the room stood as many as 24 of those paddles that boys had given him. He taught us history and English and believe me, he didn't have much trouble in those classes."

The class of '24 has had an annual banquet every year since its graduation. Along with the class have been four regular attendees. H. O. Smith, who was principal when the class graduated, hasn't missed a banquet. E. E. Floyd, present principal of Henry Grady High, has always come.

R. L. "Shorty" Doyal started coming to tell about the football team and is a regular guest, and Mr. Johnson.

Nearly 35 of the original class of '24 were present for last night's anniversary dinner. With them for the first time were their wives.

"We've decided to invite them every 25 years," Shivers said. "Usually this is our one night a year to pick up a few new jokes."

"We get a kick out of our toastmasters, like Dr. Claude Mitchell, who is toastmaster tonight," Shivers said, "and Mr. Johnson is always good for some good stories."

Jessie Jordan, 37-year-old Negro who clubbed a guard to death in the City Stockade July 20, was found guilty of murder in DeKalb Circuit Court yesterday.

The Negro's attorneys filed a special plea of insanity Monday, but the jury ruled against it.

The jury deliberated for five minutes after an all-day trial on the murder charge yesterday. They returned a straight verdict of guilty without a recommendation of mercy which usually carries a death sentence.

Jordan killed guard Jesse C. Haynes, 67, of 2251 Sutton St., S. E., using a shovel as a club. Witnesses said Jordan knocked the guard down with the first blow and stood over him to pound his unconscious body 10 or 12 more times.

Nathan's attorneys, Oscar Mitchell and W. E. Zachary, said they would file a motion for a new trial.

Atlantan Hurt In Hit-Run

Thomas H. McNally, 26, of La Vista Rd., N. E., last night was admitted to a private hospital in serious condition after being struck down near his home by a hit-run driver, DeKalb P. H. Spruell and H. C. Rowden said.

Patrolmen said McNally was walking along the road when he was struck by a car. The hood flew off the machine, they said, but evidently the driver returned for it when police left the scene.

McNally suffered a broken left leg and possible internal injuries. Spruell and Rowden said the machine was a red ton-and-a-half International truck with a stake body. McNally was unable to say whether the driver was white or Negro.

YOUR STARS TODAY

WHAT TO EXPECT TODAY
Sun in Virgo. — Sales, travel, publicity, research, writing—this during the evening—and most fields of commerce will prosper today. Let me repeat that this period of seven days to come is one of the most fortunate times of the year, so get busy. I would not depend too much upon work done in past months, but would go out and try some new line or make some new contact. The social side of life is almost swamped by all this rush toward practical considerations, but if you can combine the two, you may be both happy and wealthy. Look about you, if your birthdate happens to be near mid-January or May.
If It's Your Birthday—Men of this birthdate have an easier year ahead than have the women, for home life seems restrictive or in some way given over to extra responsibilities. There is a chance to move or to make new friends shown, but unless it is taken quickly, it may dissolve. The early months of 1950 will be favorable, but again, quick action will be necessary and must be planned for—don't let things jog along without any decision. You have several months of this season, then in the Summer of 1950 you may find out that you wish you had taken the offers. Don't let it go until it's too late.

TODAY IN RADIO

Brace Yourself! Graziano's Fighting

By RITA VAN PELT
The 10-round boxing bout between Rocky Graziano, former middleweight titleholder, and Charley Fusari, leading welterweight contender, slated to be fought at the Polo Grounds in New York tonight, will be aired via WCON-ABC at 9 p. m.

While Fusari is described as a ring-wise veteran of impressive victories, Graziano's ring career has embraced an incredible series of ups and downs, from a championship to crushing defeats. Sounds like anything may happen, so you'd better be tuned in for the excitement if you're a boxing fan.

Debona Is Welk's Guest

The Lawrence Welk WCON-ABC show, slated for 10 tonight, will feature as guest Joe Debona, recent winner of the Bendix Air Races. Musical numbers to be played include "It's a Big Wonderful World," "You're Breaking My Heart," "A Room Full of Roses," and "A Little More Love."

Comedy Playhouse

The Gold Coast Players will be the stars when Anton Checkov's comedy, "The Proposal," comes over Comedy Playhouse, a WGST-MBS program on at 10 this p. m.

Strange Music

Do you like musical oddities? Mark Warnow, guest conductor on the WAGA-CBS Conductors' Showcase, has elected to build his entire program of seldom-heard oddities of composition tonight at 9. Included will be a novelty titled "Mallorca" written by the Duke of Windsor; "Daily Exercises for the Combined CBS Orchestra," signed by one Archibald T. Amanaensis; "Swing, Low, Sweet Clarinet" and "Swing, Swing, Dear Mother-in-Law."

New Musical Show

A new musical program which WCON will carry on Wednesdays and Thursdays, beginning tonight at 8:30, is one which originates with WRNL in Richmond, Va. Titled "The Sauer Show," the program has long been a favorite with Virginians. It features a cast of widely-known and talented musicians including William Angel, baritone vocalist who has appeared as soloist in New York with the Brahms Chorus, with the late Grace Moore and Andre Kostelanetz' Orchestra. He has also appeared as soloist with the Virginia and North Carolina Symphony Orchestras, and for two seasons toured with the Charles L. Wagner Opera Company.

Mademoiselle Fifi

Guy de Maupassant's "Mademoiselle Fifi" will be done on the WGST-MBS Family Theater tonight at 9:30. The story, as you may remember, deals with the Prussian invasion of northern France.

Bread Crumb Tip

Those bread crumbs made from leftover bread can dress up many a vegetable dish. Browned in bacon drippings, a dash of vinegar added, they're superb on cooked green beans and asparagus.

NOT A CONTEST BETWEEN SCHOOLS OR CLASSES ...ANY CLASS CAN ENTER AND EARN FUNDS FOR A CLASS-TRIP!

Campaign runs from Sept. 15 to April 1

(This campaign has the enthusiastic approval of Dr. M. D. Collins, Georgia State Superintendent of Schools)

$100,000.00?

YES, $100,000.00! . . . That fabulous sum has been made available in a State-wide plan whereby Georgia school students may earn money for their class-trips by getting subscriptions to The Atlanta Constitution.

NEVER BEFORE IN HISTORY have Georgia's students had such a golden opportunity to earn money to finance class-trips. No papers will be delivered by students . . . no money collected. All they will do is ask for your name on a subscription blank if you do not already subscribe. The Constitution will donate a generous amount for each subscription to a class fund earmarked for a class-trip in the spring, or other designated class project.

TOPS IN TRAVEL are those fascinating class-trips some students take each year, but which many others are unable to enjoy because of lack of funds. Knowing this, The Constitution decided that something should be done in order that more students could enjoy travel. Something has been done—to the tune of
